Kathi Edwards Named 'Miss Dexter'

DEXTER -- Miss Kathi Edwards, the beautiful 17-year-old brownette daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Duane Edwards, displaying poise and graciousness that won the hearts of a capacity crowd of better than 500 persons, was named to the dual role of "Dexter Strawberry Queen" and "Miss Dexter" for 1969 Monday night. She suceeds retiring Miss Vicki Smyth.

Miss Paulette Wilburn, 16, daughter of Mrs. Bessie Parris, was named as first Alternate, and Miss Sue McCanne, 16, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Joel McCanne, was named the second alternate in the beauty contest that set a record entry with the 69 hopefuls parading the stage in sportswear and formal dress attire, prior to the selection -- which came after three hours of pondering by a trio of out-of-town judges. Miss Wilburn was sponsored by Lucille's Beauty Bar and Miss McCanne by Jay's Music Store.

Miss Edwards, whose soft brown eyes accent her beauty, is a five foot, two inch, 115-pound junior, who entered the contest just prior to the closing deadline, under the sponsorship of the Dexter Citizens Bank. In fact, she entered so late her name did not even appear on the printed program and was placed as number 68 on the otherwise alphabetically arranged program.

It was evident from her initial appearance that the poise and carriage she displayed in the opening showing that she had caught the attention of the well behaved audience, and when she was included in the "final 10," predictions of her winning were audible amid the crowd.

Also included in the final 10 were: Mary Ann Bess, Cindy Johnston, Judith Larsen, Mary Webber, Kay Williams, Beverly Smyth -- sister of the 1968 winner -- and Vicki Davis.

The new "Miss Dexter" begins her reign Thursday morning when she opens the competition in the strawberry picking contest involving the defending champion Kiwanis, against the Jaycees and the Lions Clubs.

She was crowned by Miss Smythe, the retiring "Miss Dexter" and presented a $50 bond, gifts and flowers by Mayor Willis Conner.

Miss Inez Sapp, gave the master of ceremonies assignment a professional air as she braved the three and one-half hours aside the microphone in an excellent rendition of the contestants backgrounds, their attires and their sponsors.

Mrs. Charles Acord likewise handled the pianist duties of the extended presentation in professional mien while Mrs. Pearl Warren, president of the Business and Professional Womens Club -- the sponsoring agency -- and Mrs. Claude Arnold, chairman of the event, kept the program moving in fine style -- thanks to the aid of many alert committeewomen.

Consolidation Reconsidered

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon Administration has reportedly reconsidered its planned consolidation of regional offices of various agencies and will add Kansas City and Seattle to the list of eight centers announced last March by President Nixon.

Congressmen from Kansas, Missouri and Washington protested when Kansas City and Seattle were not included in the consolidation order.

Under the order consolidation of federal agencies was for the cities of Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia, Denver, New York, Dallas-Fort Worth, Atlanta and San Francisco.

Prisoners Threaten Ray's Life

Avery said Monday word of the threat, which came in a telephone call, "had a lot to do" with his decision to keep Ray in a maximum security cell after his normal six-week stay which finished at the end of April.

W.E. Hopton, director of the Tennessee Bureau of Criminal Identification, said he had heard nothing about the threat. The TBI normally would be called upon to investigate any such incident, especially one involving the Tennessee state prison where Ray is serving a 99-year sentence.

Avery said he talked with the caller 20 minutes, traced the call and was able to identify the caller.

Allies Seize Hamburger Hill

SAIGON (AP) - American paratroopers and South Vietnamese infantrymen captured a North Vietnamese mountaintop fortress overlooking the A Shu Valley today in the 10th day of hard fighting for the position.

The U. S. Command said 426 North Vietnamese and 43 Americans were killed in the seige of 3,000-foot Dong Ap Bia mountain, close to the Laotian border. Another 273 paratroopers were wounded, including 45 in the final push today.

The allied force was increased nearly five-fold during the night, bringing it to more than 1,000 paratroopers and 400 South Vietnamese. Then they stormed the mountaintop from four sides, killing 75 North Vietnamese in the drive.

The final assault began at 10 a.m., and an hour and 45 minutes later one battalion from the 101st Airborne Division that had suffered heavy casualties in 10 previous assaults made it to the top and held.

As the paratroopers advanced, the North Vietnamese poured down a steady stream of rocket and hand grenades and peppered the slopes with machine gun and small arms fire.

At 11:20 a.m., the battalion commander, Lt. Col. Weldon Honeycutt, 38, of Columbus, Ga., radioed from his command helicopter overhead that "the enemy is streaming off the hill," headed southwest toward Laos.

Fifteen minutes later North Vietnamese rear guard units began firing tear gas on one of the paratrooper companies, but a brisk breeze blew most of it away.

At 12:10, Honeycutt radioed: "There are a whole bunch of North Vietnamese wandering around in front of Alpha Company. They don't have helmets and they just seem to be in a daze."

Associated Press correspondent Jay Sharbutt reported from the battlefield that Charlie and Alpha Companies began receiving rocket grenade and mortar fire on the hilltop two hours after they had seized it. They halted their advance, while another paratrooper battalion moved out after the retreating North Vietnamese.

A total of four battalions made the final assault, three of them from the 101st Airborne and the fourth from the South Vietnamese 1st Infantry Division.

U.S. intelligence officers told Sharbutt the mountaintop appeared to be the headquarters base of the 29th North Vietnamese Regiment. They said it appeared that the headquarters elements pulled out during the night, leaving an estimated battalion of about 400 troops to delay the allied assault.

Sharbutt reported the once heavily jungled mountaintop looked like a forest fire had swept through it after the 10 days of heavy bomb, napalm and artillery strikes.

A South Vietnamese battalion moving up the mountain met only light resistance. It found a three-inch telephone cable that was believed to have connected the mountaintop base with North Vietnamese bases in Laos.

The paratroopers found many partly collapsed bunkers with dead North Vietnamese soldiers inside, apparently killed by the U.S. bombing and shelling.

The mountain commands a portion of the 25-mile long valley, which is the biggest enemy supply and staging area in the northern part of the South Vietnam.

Elsewhere-

Enemy gunners kept up their nightly rocket and mortar attacks with more than half of dozen reported Monday night against U. S. bases, U. S. headquarters said two Americans were killed, 14 were wounded and four helicopters were damaged in a mortar attack on the headquarters of the U. S. 9th Infantry Division 42 miles southwest of Saigon.

Spacemen Follow True Path

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Racing "right down the slot" toward a Wednesday rendezvous with the moon, Apollo 10 explorers today studied lunar maps—doing their "homework" for 2½ dangerous days in moon orbit.

Their target, a sliver of silver light, loomed larger and larger as their home planet, earth, shrank in the distance, nearly 200,000 miles away.

As the astronauts spent a leisurely day coasting deeper into the black void of space, Air Force Col. Thomas P. Stafford reported they were studying the charts and flight plan for the critical lunar orbit portion of the pathfinder mission.

"We've got a little time to kill here," Stafford said, "so we're going over our lunar activities, just doing our homework so we'll be ahead of the game when we get there."

Navy Cmdr. John Young spent much of the morning exercising Apollo 10's navigation equipment, charting a course by the stars.

Mission control and commercial networks did not receive the picture because satellite communications and land line systems were not activated at the time. Madrid recorded the program— showing the earth, with emphasis on Africa and India—and some interior shots in the cabin.

The capsule communicator at mission control, astronaut Jack Lousma, passed the good word that Apollo 10 was on such an accurate path that a course change planned for early afternoon would not be necessary.

The astronauts said their sleep was not bothered by thruster firings as it was on their first night in space.

Mission control had passed up instructions to change the method of rotating the spaceship during the night. The procedure eliminated the need for the automatic firings which resulted in what the astronauts called "dull thuds."

The astronauts reported all systems operating flawlessly on the command ship and the lunar landing rocketship module (LEM) linked to its nose.

Nixon, Thieu Set Meeting

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon and South Vietnamese Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu will fly to Midway Island in the Pacific June 8 to discuss a common policy toward a peaceful solution to the Vietnam war.

"The two presidents had desired to hold such a meeting as soon as feasible in order to establish personal contact and discuss together the conduct of the war in Vietnam and the search for a peaceful solution," said the announcement made here and in Saigon.

The one-day meeting, suggested last Saturday by Thieu, will be the first session between the two chief executives. Thieu met in Honolulu last July with thenPresident Lyndon B. Johnson.

Although the announcement did not mention U.S. troop withdrawals and South Vietnamese elections, these topics probably will be on the agenda, qualified sources said earlier.

The groundwork for the first meeting of the Vietnamese chief of state and the new U.S. President was laid in Saigon last weekend when Secretary of State William P. Rogers held extensive talks there with Thieu.

The Vietnamese president said in a statement Saturday he hoped to meet with Nixon because he felt it was necessary to set up a common policy.

Midway is the scene of a turning-point battle in the Pacific in World War II—a dot of an island 1,149 miles west of Hawaii.

One casualty is his commencement address at Ohio State University June 7. Vice President Spiro T. Agnew will substitute for him, the White House said.

The Nixon departure point will be his newly purchased Spanish-style residence on the Pacific shore at San Clemente, Calif.

Before leaving Saigon Monday, Secretary of State William P. Rogers agreed a summit would be useful. Rogers spent four days in Vietnam attempting to reassure the Thieu regime about Nixon administration policies.

Vietnamese diplomatic sources here showed concern over a section of President Nixon's latest peace program for Vietnam which called for elections to be held as soon as possible under international supervision.

The Vietnam officials contend that elections held before 1970 would upset the constitutional process and open the door to an unconstitutional coalition form of government.

The United States has reassured South Vietnam that it would not take part in any plan to impose a coalition government, but there was no agreement as the timing of the election.

On the issue of troop withdrawals, the Vietnamese want assurances of appropriate U.S. air and artillery support before American combat divisions are replaced by Vietnamese on the fighting front.

Nixon hasn't mentioned any timetable but some U.S. officials appear optimistic that improvement of South Vietnam forces and the situation on the battlefield will make possible a U.S. withdrawal sometime in mid-summer. South Vietnamese sources have suggested September or early fall mark the start of the replacement program.

Hearnes Offers Arson Reward

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes said today he is offering a $500 reward for the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who committed arson at Lincoln University Monday night.

He said he thought things were under control now "because it is daylight.

"The sad part about all of this he said, "is that so many students must suffer because of the actions of a few criminals. And they are criminals. Arson is a felony punishable by imprisonment for up to 10 years."

House Approves Gas Tax Hike

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The House today passed 105-48, a bill to boost the state motor fuel tax from 5 cents a gallon to 7 cents.

The bill would not, however, become effective unless the approve a constitutional change that would permit issuance of up to $500 million in highway bonds to speed up construction of need highways.

The proposed constitutional amendment passed the House 98-31 May 15. It has not yet been sent to the Senate committee. If it passes both Houses it then would be subject to voter approval.

Meanwhile, the Senate has passed a proposed constitutional change to permit use of highway funds to help pay off toll road bonds. The House has shelved a similar proposal.

Arson, Shots Bring out Troops

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The sound of shotgun blasts filled the air briefly Monday night on the campus of Lincoln University while firemen were quelling fires in three campus buildings.

The highway patrol called the fires arson and said the shotgun blasts were fired from two and possibly three dormitories. No one was injured.

Officials said about 100 highway patrolmen, sheriff's officers and police remained on the campus overnight and 200 National Guardsmen were called to the scene.

A group of students launched a series of peaceful demonstrations on the campus about two weeks ago in support of a list of 35 demands, including social academic and athletic grievances.

A three-day sit-in that began May 9 and ended shortly after highway patrol troopers were called in and Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth got a court order evicting the students from the student union building. The troopers were removed, and representatives of the students, faculty and administration met to work on the problem.

Some students continued to boycott classes. The administration charged them with a "breach of faith" and said Monday negotiations could not resume until the students cooperated.

Late Monday afternoon, what was termed a minor cafeteria disturbance broke out. Chairs and tables were overturned and some windows were broken.

The fires broke out then around 10:30 p.m. and as police and firemen arrived on the campus there was a brief flurry in which rocks and other missiles were hurled about the campus. The interior of a lounge in the new student union was destroyed by flames. Memorial Hall suffered minor damage and a blaze in the library was quickly extinguished, but another fire broke out a short time later causing extensive damage.

The shotgun blasts were fired from the dormitories, the patrol said, while firemen were fighting the second fire at the library was quickly extinguished, but another fire broke out a short time later causing extensive damage.

The shotgun blasts were fired from the dormitories, the patrol said, while firemen were fighting the second fire at the library. Patrol spokesmen said some officers answered the blasts by firing shotguns in the air and the shooting quickly ended.

Dean of Students Ben Pugh, shortly after 1 a.m., appealed to "men of Foster Hall and Allen Hall, please come out. No harm will come to you."

About 75 students emerged from two dormitories where some of the shooting occurred. They were surrounded by officers and marched to the gymnasium.

Pugh said school officials would meet today to decide their next step and whether disciplinary action should be taken against any students involved.

He said he wanted to talk with one young man who called for violence in a speech before the Union Building early in the evening.

Fire Chief Don Hunter estimated damage to the three year-old union building at $50,000. A book store in the building was gutted and the adjoining cafeteria suffered water and smoke damage.

Fireman Jim Nichols suffered a severe wrist cut while fighting one blaze. He was treated at a hospital and returned to the campus.

A rock broke a window in a fire truck and a red light was knocked off a police car but no other equipment damage was reported.

Hearing Set on June 3 for Telephone Breaking Suspects

Charles M. Shaw, Clayton, a well known attorney who has represented numerous underworld characters in the past, made an appearance this morning in Scott County Magistrate Court held at the Sikeston Police Station.

Shaw informed the court he was representing Mr. and Mrs. James H. Hampton, Kirkwood. They are charged with burglarizing and damaging several pay telephones in Sikeston earlier this month. Mr. and Mrs. Hampton are charged with five felonious charges and four misdemeanor charges each. They are free on bond. Hampton and his wife are also charged with tampering with telephones in Stoddard County. They are also free on bonds there.

After conferring with Scott County Assistant Prosecuting Attorney James E. Moore III, Shaw told Judge M. E. Montgomery that he wanted to have preliminary hearings for his clients June 3. The request was granted.

In another case this morning Prosecutor Moore suggested a careless and imprudent driving charge against Larry H. Scott, route four, Sikeston, be dismissed.

The state filed charges on Scott following an accident that occurred earlier this month on Highway 61 near Morley. Moore told the judge the accident occurred because Scott's car suddenly stalled and was partially on the highway when hit by an oncoming car. Moore also informed the court that Scott attempted to warn the approaching car before impact.

Judge Montgomery agreed with Moore's suggestion and the defendant's plea of guilty was set aside and the charge was dismissed.

"I can understand," Judge Montgomery said, "and since this gas war has started in Sikeston, my car has stalled several times too." Laughter ripped through the courtroom following the judge's statement.

The judge granted Arlene Y. Staggs, 840 Lynn, a week's continuance on a charge of giving wrong information to the welfare office.

Nathanial Wright, 318 Alabama, was also granted a one week's continuance by the court. Wright is charged with dumping a dump truck load of garbage in the middle of a road near Morehouse. Wright was not sure whether he wanted to plead guilty or not guilty to this charge.

Ocie Lee Davis, Commerce, was fined $10 for careless driving and $5 for failure to have an operator's license.

Jimmie Goin, Parma, was fined $10 for having an inadequate car muffler.

Albert Ray Jr., route four, Sikeston, was fined $10 for careless driving. Noah Ward Jr., Flint, Mich., was fined $40 for speeding.

Jerry W. Little, 613 Matthews, was fined $5 for failure to have a fishing license while engaged in the sport.

Jimmie Staggs, 948 Lake, was granted a one week's continuance on a charge of illegal possession of beer. His bond was set at $100.

A warrant was issued for the arrest of Ernie Green, Anniston, who failed to appear in court to face a charge of failure to have an operator's license.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
INVESTING IN CRIME

You don't have to be a professional pollster to know that the average citizen is alarmed at the national crime rate. One of the key phrases in the campaign oratory of the leading candidates in last year's race for the White House was "law and order". This despite the statements of the demagogues that the phrase held implications of racism. People are just fed up with the crime in the streets and everywhere else.

President Nixon has launched his attack on crime and the first phrase is to be against the organized variety; namely, bigtime gambling. This may at first glance appear to be the wrong place to fire the opening volley. After all, the majority of those who finance the gambling syndicates are the little people, the two-dollar bettors. The housewife who "invests" a few cents on the numbers. The factory worker who plunks down a few disposable dollars on a baseball, basketball or football pool ticket. We are not talking now about the intra-office pool, which is totally self-contained, winner-take-all. That is, all the money in the pot goes to the winners. None is sent on to the pros in the upper echelons of crime.

Our concern lies with those who unwittingly are investing in the crime wave. Their dollars and cents go into the coffers of huge organizations. These small investments furnish the syndicates the capital with which to expand operations in narcotics, loan-sharking and white slavery. Consider the ironic case of the housewives and breadwinners who donate hard-earned dollars to the very characters who are leading their children to narcotics addiction. Consider, too, the small-change numbers player, who is shocked when a son turns to robbery, or a daughter to prostitution to finance their own personal tragedies. Ladies and gentlemen, place your bets. You can't win, but think of the lifetime of self-guil' you may be acquiring at very low original cost.

HEARNES' COURAGE AT LINCOLN

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes acted with dispatch and right judgment to quash an illegal takeover of the Student Union building on the campus of Lincoln University. Had had not moved with courageous decision, this incipient revolt could have escalated into a riot.

He made it sharply clear he will not tolerate "demands" made in an unlawful way or sit permissively by while students of a state university transgress legal rights of citizens and pillage the desire of the majority of students to obtain an education.

"Because these sit-in students didn't tear up the building," the Governor told The Globe-Democrat, "is no reason they should be patted on the back.

"As long as I am Governor lawlessness will not be permitted in any Missouri institution under my jurisdiction."

The Governor declared that attending a state-supported college is "a privilege, not a right." Students, he considers, can make requests of a school administration, not "demands." The protesters at Lincoln submitted more than 50 "demands".

If the university administrators do not accede to student "grievance" requests, the students can "transfer elsewhere." Extortion or violence is insupportable.

In what he called an approximate smile, the Governor said "if someone owes you a debt, you can't collect it at the point of a gun."

Occupation of the Student Uion by recalcitrant students lasted four days. Mr. Hearnes could not act, however, until Monday after the demonstrators barred Dean of Students Ben Pugh from the building in an evert, illegal act. Previously they had permitted anyone to enter or leave.

The Governor then promptly asked Attorney General John C. Danforth to seek a court injunction. Mr. Danforth acted at once and got the order the same day. He is also to be commended for giving full warning to the revolting students and allowing 15 minutes for them to evacuate the building. They left promptly.

The conduct of State Representative J. B. (Jet) Banks, on the contrary, was that of phony peacemaker. He went into the Student Union to talk to the youths into evacuation. Report is some had already started drifting out, concerned over facing stiff fines or jail for contempt of court if they remained.

Banks promised to introduce in the Legislature a resolution to grant all the 50-plus "demands" - a proposterous move. The Assembly probably will not and should not get involved. This is distinctly an administrative issue.

This week is not the first time Mr. Hearnes has acted effectively to halt lawlessness. When rioting suddenly broke out in Kansas City during April, 1968, causing six deaths, scores of incendiary fires and $500,000 damage, the Governor quickly called out the State Highway Patrol and National Guard.

The riot was stamped out. Had he not acted fast, many more could have been slain and the damage manyfold.

Governor Hearnes lamented the gradual change over recent years that has led many bewildered citizens to close their eyes to depredations visited on campuses of the nation's universities.

After vacating the Student Union, negotiators representing students, faculty and administration of Lincoln University demanded blanket amnesty for all students who took part in the peremptory occupation of the building.

The Lincoln Board of Curators flatly refused such amnesty, as it should have done. Each case cited should be treated on its merits. Some student leaders should be expelled.

Some of the issues made by students merit administrative consideration, such as improvement in living quarters; some were just silly. But methods of illegal extortion cannot be condoned.

It is very reassuring that state administration in Jefferson City has stood fast in support of universities run by the universities, not overrun by lawlessness, restive segments of violence-prone student minorities.

CHEER UP!

A publication of the Arizona Farm Bureau observes: "There are over 200 million Americans in this country, and they are not all bad -- as some would make you think. Over 68 million are gainfully employed. There are over 180 million who are not commnists. More than 40 million couples will remain married and more than 178 million will not die of cancer. Over 50 million auto drivers will still be alive at the end of this year, and over 2 million new homes are being built to house 2 million happy newlyweds.

"So cheer up . . . your chances of reaching the age of 85 are excellent."

BREEDING BUREAUCRACY

Bureaucracy is a strange creature. It's like a balloon that won't burst. It expands by infusions of hot air. It is elastic and fills nearly any given void irrespective of shape. Citizens supply the atmosphere in which the monstrous bubble exists.

The hot air is usually supplied by bureaucrats or lawmakers. Huff. Puff. the bubble grows. Each idea fed into the balloon makes it grow bigger and bigger. Our government bubble is pushing hard on the extremities of its environmental casing, but gusts of air keep feeding into it.

It sometimes appears that each congressman is determined to place his stamp on the growing bureaucracy, perhaps thinking that if he does not push for more big government the folks back home will think him negligent. Thus he promotes bills that cost the taxpayer more dollars and increased red tape.

Another promoter of increased government bureaucracy is the man who thinks that every ill of society can be cured by some institution of the bureaucracy. If a problem exists, create a bureau of government of a Cabinet-level department to solve it.

Florida Representative Claude Pepper wants a top-level Department of Youth Affairs to solve the problems of youth. This department would be in charge of representing the nation's youth in the nation's policy-making councils. Under Mr. Pepper's concept, the Peace Corps, VISTA and the National Teacher's Corps would be transferred to the new bureau. You can be sure that the transfer of these three functions to a new branch of the federal octopus would not decrease the spending or the staffing of the departments from which they would be transferred. Why not create several departments? High schoolers have problems unlike those of college students. Perhaps we should have separate departments for the two. And another for grade school students. And, finally, how about a Department of Pre-school Affairs? On second thought, why don't we all just go on the dole? Each of us could then become a Department for Individual Affairs and let the government pay us!

PRAISED BY CARTHAGE NEWSPAPER
SYMINGTON'S STAND ON SPENDING

An Editorial From the Carthage Press - Senator Stuart Symington in a recent Washington Report he publishes periodically has some pertinent comments on the fiscal situation of our nation and steps he recommends to ease the burden of each one of us, the taxpayer. Senator Symington deserves the support of his constituents to bring this about and a letter to him would not be amiss.

He suggests:

"A thorough assessment of our nation's commitments both abroad and here at home, followed by a meaningful establishment of priorities, is long overdue. With the changing of administrations, there would appear no more opportune time than now to begin this all important task.

"Congress has been presented with a federal budget for the fiscal year 1970 of more than $195 billion, a jump of almost $80 billion during the last six years.

"If the succeeding six years produce a comparable budget escalation, the united States government would be requiring the taxpayers of America to put up $325 billion annually to support the Federal Government alone. This would be in addition to all state and local taxes.

"Such an increase, in the face of growing fiscal and monetary problems, would appear a difficult if not impossible burden for our people to bear.

"Accordingly, hard decisions must be made now, so that we may play our total expenditures in relation to our revenue and thereby limit future Federal deficits. If we are to continue as the number one nation, very possibly if our capitalistic system is to survive, some day we must survive, some day we must learn to live within our means.

"The dangerous rate of the inflation currently being experienced demonstrates clearly that increasing deficits - last year the Federal deficit alone was over $25 billion - are bound to lead to ever higher prices, and the effect of these inflated prices can only be particularly damaging to this nation's international balance of payments, with inevitable further loss of world confidence in the integrity of the dollar.

"It would be my suggestion that our nation now establish priorities so as to curb Federal expenditures, an arduous but essential task which now faces the Congress and the new administration. A strong and stable economy is not only essential to our prosperity and well-being, but also to our national security."

Missouri motorists were reminded today by Colonel E.I. (Mike) Hockaday, the Superintendent of the State Highway Patrol, that bicycles are much in evidence on streets and highways now that warm weather is here. He urged drivers to use extra caution when a bicyclist is in the traffic picture.

"Unfortunately, too many youngsters are permitted to venture into traffic without proper training," Hockaday stated. "They are not experienced in the handling of a bicycle and do not recognize traffic hazards. Much of the responsibility for the safety of bicyclists rest in the hands of the driver. The motorist should drive defensively when near a bicyclist. He should anticipate a sudden move by a youngster that might cause a collision."

The Patrol Superintendent noted that 13 bike riders were killed in Missouri last year. Several others were injured in collisions with motor vehicles.

Colonel Hockaday also called upon parents to do their part to help insure the safety of their children. He urged them to make sure their child's bicycle is in safe operating condition and to make sure the riders know the rules of safe cycling.

"Bicycle riders must observe the same traffic laws that apply to motorists," the Colonel pointed out. "They are expected to stop for stop signs, wait their turn at stop and go signals and signal their turns.

"Parents should instill in their children a respect for traffic laws early. Not only is their safety involved, but in a few short years these youngsters will be carrying the habits they have learned to the driver's seat of the family car," Hockaday concluded.

"What caused your grandfather's death?"

"He died of throat trouble."

Steps Toward A New Image

Rep. Richard H. Ichord, new chairman of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, wants to change the name of that oft-criticized body and has introduced a bill to that effect for the second time.

"Un-American as a term is ambiguous," says the Missouri Democrat. "It's not a good legal term, and that concerns people who have more libertarian philosophies."

Ambiguous the term may well be, but controversial it definitely has been. It is doubtful, however, whether Ichord's suggestion or a new name -- the House Committee on Internal Security -- will be any more semantically palatable to those of more libertarian philosophies.

The words, unfortunately, carry connotations of the secret dossier, the knock in the night, the kangaroo trial and all the other depredations committed in the name of "internal security" by the Nazi SS, the Soviet NKVD and their like.

Probably no name would be palatable for an investigating body that hails people before it to inquire into their private affairs, activities and beliefs, which of necessity must employ the services of unidentified informers, which is not a court of judgment but which too often has given the impression of being one.

Another change Ichord proposes to implement involves the committee's investigative techniques. There will be fewer summonses for hostile witnesses who can be expected to refuse to testify under the Fifth Amendment.

"There is no purpose in bringing a Commie before the committee and asking him questions on which we know he is going to take the Fifth," says Ichord.

While it may be arguable whether only "Commies" take the Fifth or whether anyone who takes the Fifth is ipso facto a "Commie," this change in the committee's operations will be welcome if only for the fact that it may spare the nation any repeats of farcical hearings in the past which have not only tended to discredit the committee and ridicule the office of congressman but have led too many people to suspect that there may be something un-American about the U.S. Constitution itself.

He grabbed me 'round my slender neck
I could not call or scream,
And dragged me to his dingy room
Where we could not be seen.
He tore away my flimsy wrap
And looked upon my form.
I was so cold and damp and scared
While he was hot and warm.
He drained me of my very self,
I could not make him stop.
His feverish lips he pressed to mine
I gave him every drop.
He made me what I am today,
That's why you find me here,
A broken bottle thrown away
That once was full of beer.

UTOPIA ON HALF TIME

A study by the Southern California Research Council, a nonprofit organization for economic and social inquiries sponsored by educational and business groups, prophesies that within 17 years Americans will have to work only six months a year for the same standard of living that they have now. Presumably, this means that six-month vacations will be the rule by 1985.

Another recent press report quotes Special Assistant to the President for Consumer Affairs, Betty Furness, to the effect that one of the things that bothers consumers most now is trying to get an automobile or home appliance repaired. As our homes becomes increasingly automated and gadgetized, the problem of keeping everything in running order grows apace. Think what it will be like when repair experts work only six months of the year. It seems rather strange to contemplate millions of Americans spending six months of every year in leisure during the most productive times of life.

WHERE PROGRESS RESETS

Because many young people have professed scorn of a business career--preferring instead the "challenge" of some sort of "public service" -- the idea has become prevalent that young people by and large have turned their backs on careers in private industry. Studies by the National Industrial Conference Board and the Research Institute of America show instead that a high level of interest in business careers does indeed exist among college students.

The reasons for this interest were discussed by the chairman of the board of a large oil company. In the course of an Address before a group of university students. He reminded his audience that, "..in our great national effort to attack the problems of urban slums, race relations and poverty generally, business is playing a vital role. It provides jobs. It conducts training programs. It develops more efficient means to building low-cost housing.

"Increasingly, the government is looking to private industry to close the gap between legislative theory and practical reality in the conduct of programs designed to cure the ills of society. The role of business in these areas is expected to increase in the years ahead, expanding the opportunities for young people whose interests lie in that direction."

In the final analysis, it is business -- productive, taxpaying business -- that must provide the enterprise, the initiative, the capital and the productiveness upon which all progress ultimately rests. For this reason, the opportunities, and the challenges inherent in business careers are almost boundless -- for those willing to accept them.

A MEN'S FASHION EVOLUTION OR REVOLUTION

Some people refer to the current goings - in in men's fahsions as a revolution- others speak of it as speeded - up evolution. It's really simply a matter of semantics. They are all referring to greater male fashion awareness combined with the faster tempo of style change and quicker acceptance of new style ideas. Whatever you prefer to call it -- evolution or revolution -- it means men have given a note of confidence to today's fashions.

COMMUNITY SELF-HELP

Government bureaucrats tell us that communities made up primarily of minority groups or low-income families cannot develop needed community spirit without government assistance. We are expected to believe that pride in one's neighborhood can come only as a result of government handouts.

This is obviously wrong. Government handouts decrease individual independence and deprive the individual of pride of accomplishment.

Self-help projects, on the other hand, in which residents of a neighborhood work together on local improvement, will bring about unity and a community spirit.

An example of this kind of self-help can be found in Orlando, Flordia. A minority group neighborhood needed a community center. Instead of asking for state or federal aid, the people in the area helped themselves.

They formed the Washington Shores Recreation Association which conducted a vigorous door-to-door campaign. When their initial effort fell short, they did not give up, but worked even better. After many hours of work, the goal was reached. The community raised a total of $125,000 for their new center.

Congressman Louis Frey, who represents the area in which this drive took place, expressed his pride in the Washington Shores Recreation Association. He added: "It is refreshing in today's society to know that initiative and independence are still a vital part of the American way of life."

Congressman Frey went on: "Opportunity is everywhere. It is waiting for those who have the courage and dedication to seek it out." The residents of the Washington Shores area had this courage and dedication. They should serve as an example to communities all over the nation. HLH

NEW YORK (AP) -- "Success robs you of a lot of fun," said Jacqueline Susann, the television actress turned author. "When I was 18 I used to dream of being able to eat caviar every day of my life.

"Now I can't eat caviar at all because it makes me fat."

However, Jackie, the current sensation of the publishing world, can afford to buy caviar by the barrel if she chooses to.

Her first novel, "Valley of the Dolls," sold more than 356,000 hard cover copies and over 10 million in paper back.

Her second, "The Love Machine," threatens to equal or surpass "Valley of the Dolls" as a best seller. Within a few days after publication some 300,000 copies have been printed.

Miss Susann also has received a $250,000 advance against expected paperback royalties, and she and her husband, Irving Mansfield, the television producer who acts as her business adviser, have turned down a million-dollar offer for the film rights.

"The Love Machine" details the rise and fall of Robin Stone, a brilliant and ruthless television executive. It is sprinkled with lively sex episodes, as was "Valley of the Dolls."

Jackie vehemently resents any implication that these episodes are put in merely to satisfy reader curiosity about the boudoir behavior of celebrities.

"I have never been clinical in a sexual description," she insisted. "Whenever I use sex, it is not for a prurient reason, but because it advances the plot and the story."

Using only one fast-flying finger on each hand, Miss Susann can type out as many as 30 pages in a daily work session that lasts from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m.

"I work in a den in the back of my apartment and keep the drapes closed. It's always night there. I find it impossible towrite if I look out the window and see the weather is nice."

She methodically rewrites each novel four times, using a different colored paper for each draft.

Already she has turned out 400 pages of her first draft of a third novel, tentatively entitled "The Big Man." In it, she said, she will explore again her basic theme—"how bare life is at the top among people who have lost the essential ability to communicate with other human beings."

Having achieved financial success, why does she still drive herself so hard.

"I don't know what I'm trying to prove," she said. "It simply is a compulsion. I don't know myself what keeps me cooped up writing in a lonely room when I might be leading a lovely life on the Riviera."

Washington - Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson say: Earl Warren supports stricter law on judicial ethics; Fortas case falls in borderline area; toughest crackdown on judges occurred under FDR

WASHINGTON–Inside fact is that Chief Justice Earl Warren for six years has been quietly supporting a law to set up a code of ethical conduct for the federal judiciary. If this had been adopted there would have been no Fortas case, for all judges would have been required to file for public inspection their outside income.

A similar code has now been adopted for the House of Representatives following the Thomas Dodd and Adam Clayton Powell investigation, and is the healthiest development on Capitol Hill for honesty in government in Congressional history.

Unfortunately, the Senate, despite public indignation over Sen. Tom Dodd's behavior, did not go as far as the house. While Senators are required to list such outside income as book royalties, magazine and lecture fees, they are not required to public their much bigger and more vital income such as legal retainers, stock and bond investments.

Sen. Everett Dirksen of Illinois is not required, for instance, to list the income from his Peoria law firm despite suggestion that he sometimes goes to bat for his law clients on the floor of the Senate.

--Judicial Misconduct--

Chief Justice Warren's concern over a judicial code of ethics stems from the fact that there is a borderline area, not clearly define, in which judges may receive fees. Fortas was in this borderline area.

Such a case was that of Judge Harold Medina of the U.S. Court of Appeals in New York who, during most of his judicial career was Vice President of the J.A. Medina Coffee Company. Judge and Mrs. Medina were also featured in a paid Pan American airways advertisement carried by Time Magazine in January, 1954, promoting travel on Pan Am. That same week an antitrust suit was filed by the Justice Department against Pan Am in the southern district of New York, the New York, the jurisdiction in which Judge Medina Sat.

During the Roosevelt administration there was a tough crackdown on judicial corruption--the most severe crackdown in American history. Judge Martin Manton of the U.S. Court of Appeals in New York was convicted of taking a bribe. U.S. District Judge Albert Johnson in Pennsylvania retired after impeachment proceedings were started against him. Judge Warren Davis of the third Circuit Court of Appeals retired after Attorney General Francis Biddle recommended his impeachment.

U.S. District Judge John P. Nields in Delaware retired after an investigation was started of his decisions, one of them being a delay granted in the antitrust suit against the radio corporation of America after RCA's president, David Sarnoff, paid $5,000 apiece to Sen. George Moses of New Hampshire and Sen. John Townsend of Delaware, both big wheels in the Republican party.

On the Supreme Court during Roosevelt's day, justice Pierce Butler put himself in a position of obvious prejudice in a 1936 ruling in which the great northern railroad was given a $10 million tax break. Butler had once been an attorney for the Great Northern and other railroads and had promised the Senate subcommittee which investigated him prior to confirmation that he would step aside on cases involving the railroads.

Once the Senators who sat on that committee had died, Butler reneged on his promise and actually wrote the majority opinion in the great northern case. He was joined in his decision by Justice Josephus Roberts, who had been counsel for the Pennsylvania railroad for 30 years; Justice Willis Van Devanter, once Attorney for Union Pacific, and Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, who had represented many railroads. They all voted with their old clients.

Justice Van DeVanter, of Wyoming, was also criticized for taking an agriculture adjustment act payment from the federal government for his ranch at the same time he was ruling on the constitutionality of this act.

The record of some of these cases, detailed by Joseph Borkin in "The Corrupt Judge," induced the late Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee to introduce a code for ethical conduct of the judiciary. It failed to pass. Nobody seemed much concerned about ethical conduct in those days. Sen. Joseph D. Tydings of Maryland has now revitalized the old Kefauver code and made it stronger and with a little help from Sen. Dirksen it should now become law.

--Executive Ethcal Conduct--

The Fortas affair comes at a time when the ethics of the Executive branch of government are the highest in history and the ethics of Congress considerably improved. This highlights the little-known fact that President Johnson did more to improve ethics in the executive branch than perhaps any other President by requiring every top officials to file a financial statement with the civil service commission every three months. LBJ's action came at a time when there was need of ethical improvement.

President Truman had tried to require all cabinet members to file financial statements, but his Attorney General, Howard McGrath, indignantly resigned. And ethical improvement then stopped. It even retrogressed under Eisenhower. There was the initial spectacle of Nixon's $18,000 personal expense fund in 1952 which may have helped set the tone for the Eisenhower administration. For it was followed by the forced resignations of Harold Talbott, Secretary of the Air Force; Sherman Adams, assistant to Eisenhower; Peter Strobel of the general services administration; Richard Mack of the federal communications commission; Carl O. Hansen of the farm home administration, all because of conflicts of interest.

There was also the case of the home at the Aiken, S.C., golf course especially built for Eisenhower by his big business friends, the equipping and refurbishing of the Gettysburg farm by wealthy contributors and the subsidizing of all farm expenses by W. Alton Jones of cities service, Billy Byars and George E. Allen.

Today, however, ethical standards in the executive branch of government are high.

Ann Landers

Nutty Maid Cleans Floor in the Nude

Dear Ann Landers: A few weeks ago I engaged a cleaning woman to come in twice a week and help with the floors and silver polishing. Mercedes is somewhere between 35 and 40. She has a spectacular figure but her face would stop the town clock.

Yesterday Mercedes told me she was going to give the floors a badly needed scrubbing and wax them by hand. Her last words to me were, "Please keep the boys and Mister out of my way when I work." (Frequently Mister and the boys, aged 14 and 12, come home for lunch.)

Mister did indeed come home for lunch that day and when he walked into the kitchen he was white as a sheet. "What's wrong?" I asked. "Have you seen the cleaning lady lately?" he asked. "No" I said, "Why? "Well, he replied, "you'd better check."

I went to the back hall and opened the library door. There was Mercedes on her hands and knees, waxing away -- naked as a jaybird. "Looks real nice, doesn't it?"she said proudly.

I told Mercedes the floor looked lovely but that she'd have to put on some clothes because the Mister was home. She said in a most emphatic tone that she can't do floors "all bundled up," and to please keep the men out of her way.

Ann, she's the best cleaning woman I've ever had. I need your advice and I need it fast.

Help! --- Long Island Lu

Dear Lu: Mercedes sounds like a jewel, though a bit nutty. Tell her she must get her scrubbing and waxing done before noon and after 2:00 p.m. And ask her to please lock the door when she is doing the floors. Just in case.

Dear Ann Landers: I have lived in America only six months but I have already observed a fascinating phenomenon. Nearly all the married couples we know pretend they are faithful but in reality they are having affairs left and right, both the men and women.

In Europe such duplicity does not exist. I wish to make it clear, Ann Landers, that I am not criticizing the moral standards of Americans' I merely criticize the fakery. I firmly believe it is not normal to limit oneself to one sex partner. Mature people should be free to express their natural biological drives without damaging themselves or others. I deplore the hypocrisy. How much healthier it would be to show an honest face to the world. Small wonder the psychiatrists here are so busy. Everyone is sick from pretending. ---- Anonymous Please

Dear Anonymous: No name? Not even an initial? Why not show your honest face to the world?

If you have trouble getting along with your parents . . . if you can't get them to let you live your own life, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How To Get More Freedom." Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Spring Hunting Nears

By JOEL M. VANCE
Missouri Department
of Conservation

In the spring there often isn't the "crunch, crunch" of a pouncing squirrel searching through crisp fallen leaves for juicy hickory nuts or the crips bite of a north wind rifting light snow across a rabbit patch while the beagles work.

But all indications are that the spring squirrel and rabbit seasons, opening May 30, will offer the hunter some good shooting.

Briefly, the outlook on rabbits is better than last fall when they were on the low side of a population cycle. For squirrels, the picture is not as bright as last fall when they were numerous -- above average.

"I think spring rabbit hunting will be good," says Ken Sadler, game biologist for the Department of Conservation who specializes in rabbit management. "Rabbit populations last fall were lower than they've been for several years and low populations stimulate reproduction and survival. The animals try to fill the void."

Spring rabbit hunting is not a big sport in Missouri. Many beagle trials are held in the spring, but just for competition and not to fill a bag.

Farm boys huntings around haying time take many of the spring rabbits bagged. "You hear stores about farm boys running them down while their daddies are cutting hay," Saddler says.

Don Christisen, biologist on squirrels, says the evidence indicates bushytail populations will be down some in the Ozark regions, but not much affected in North Missouri.

"We had a good late fall squirrel population which pretty well cleaned out the nut crop in the Ozarks," he says. That's borne out by recent observations of turkey hunters. Hunters said turkeys were feeding in open areas, indicating there wasn't much mast left in the woods.

"When food isn't available, squirrels don't have as many or as big litters. Usually by September we have a good season, but it may not start as well this spring as it sometimes does."

He said about 15 to 20 per cent of the annual squirrel harvest comes in the first month of the season, June, and another 60 per cent or so in the prime months of September and October.

Christisen is author of a pamphlet provided free by the Department called Show Me Squirrel Hunting which gives a complete rundown of how-to's for the sport. It even includes a recipe for "Don's Fried Squirrel" to help the hunter's harried wife figure out what to do with the squirrels her husband brings home, an average of nearly two squirrels per trip and about seven trips per year.

Prep Coach Keynote Speaker At SEMO State All—Sports Banquet

CAPE GIRARDEAU — The "winningest" high school basketball coach in the country will be the speaker Thursday night (May 22) at the All-Sports Banquet of Southeast Missouri State College.

Walt Shublon, whose 14-year record shows 296 wins against only 26 defeats, will address the Southeast Missouri athletes at the dinner, which begins at 7:15 p.m. in the Group Housing Social Center on the campus. The banquet is sponsored by the Southeast Missouri Boosters Club.

Shublon, a graduate of Southeast Missouri, is the coach at Wyandotte High School in Kansas City, Kan. In 14 years his teams have won the state championship 10 times and finished in the runner-up spot three times.

The banquet will mark the close of intercollegiate athletics at the college until late August, except for 20 members of the team who will compete in the NCAA College Division finals at Ashland, Ohio, June 13-14.

On the whole, it has been a successful year for Southeast Missouri. Only real flops were the tennis team and golf squad, both of which finished last in MIAA competition. This was balanced, however, by the MIAA titles won by the football team and the track squad.

Neither the cross-country team nor the baseball squad performed quite up to expectations, but each had several successes during the course of their seasons, as did the wrestling and swimming teams.

Eyes In The Dark

WARRENSBURG — Carl Conway peered through the lens of his sniperscope there in the dark, waiting breathlessly for signs of alien activity.

Was it a night patrol in Viet Nam? No -- it was a Missouri Department of Conservation agent trying out a "new" piece of equipment on potential illegal wall-eye fisherrhen.

Actually, sniperscopes are nothing new to combat soldiers, but they're unfamiliar to Missouri's conservation agents. Basically, a sniperscope is a device for seeing in the dark. Involved is a generator which sends out infra-red frequences which bounce back to be collected by the instrument and turned into a picture.

As it turned out, Conway, agent for Johnson county, got only a short look with the sniperscope and didn't see anything illegal, but he thinks the equipment may have great enforcement potential.

"The range is limited to maybe 200 yards," he says. He used it for 10 minutes on the Osage River and then the generator blew a fuse. "Maybe I could have changed it in the dark," he says, "But I wasn't sure and didn't want to alarm the people on the gravel bar by using a light."

Conway borrowed the scope from Wilbur Genier of Higginsville, a scientist working with a government grant who had bought the scope for $50 in Jefferson City and had been using it to study light."

Conway borrowed the scope from Wilbur Gunier of Higginsville, a scientist working with a government grant who had bought the scope for $50 in Jefferson City and had been using it to study bats.

A Warrensburg teacher, Jack Reynolds, who is a friend of Conway's, used the scope one night to look at deer in a Warrensburg Park and Conway went with him.

"What if," Conway started thinking, "I used it to spot walleye fishermen at night when the season is closed?"

During his 10-minute experiment, he found that the scope doesn't work well in brush. "The leaves and limbs reflect nd you can't see anything," Conway says. "But out in he open -- if we'd been in a boat on the river, for example -- it works fine."

There is a newer type of scope being used in Viet Nam now which uses vailable light -- even just starlight -- and collects it so efficiently that the scope operator can see by it. The infra-red scope is bulky and heavy. It involves a back pack for the generator and weighs nearly 40 pounds.

If game violators in he future feel, even under the covering cloak of darkness, that eyes are watching them ... they may be right.

Big Red Grid Schedule Set

ST. LOUIS -- A home opener against the Chicago Bears as part of St. Louis's biggest football weekend, and four home dates during normally pleasant November highlight the Football Cardinals' 1969 schedule, announced today by the National Football League.

In a switch from the last few years, the Big Red will play all its games on Sunday afternoons, with no Saturday or Monday dates. Two of the home games will start at 3:05 p.m., the others at 1:05.

The Cardinals-Bears game on September 28 will follow by a day the Missouri-Illinois duel at Busch Memorial Stadium, presenting a spectacular two-state football weekend. Missouri - Illinois tickets, by the way, must be obtained from the schools and are not available through the Big Red.

The November home dates include four of the five Sundays during the month, with the Cardinals at home November 2 against New Orleans, November 9 against New York, November 23 against Philadelphia and November 30 against Pittsburgh.

Minnesota and Cleveland are the other two Big Red home foes, with the Vikings arriving on October 16 and the Browns rounding out the card on December 14.

The Cardinals run temperature extremes in their road schedule, opening the campaign in Dallas on September 21 and closing it in Green Bay on December 21.

Chicago's appearance in St. Louis, first visit for the Bears since the Cardinals' 24-17 victory in 1966, is the only home date for the Big Red in the first four weeks.

Besides the opener at Dallas, the Cardinals will be at Pittsburgh October 5 and at Washington October 12, with the latter the first home game for the Redskins under new coach Vince Lombardi.

Perhaps the Dallas opener will be a good omen for the Big Red, without a victory over the Cowboys in their last five meetings. However, the Cardinals opened the 1963 and 1964 campaigns in the Cotton Bowl with solid triumphs.

The Vikings will be paying their first regular-season visit to St. Louis and also looking for their first victory over the Big Red. The Cardinals have won the previous outings, 56-14 in 1963 and 34-24 in 1967, at Minnesota.

When the Cardinals travel to Detroit, it will be their first regular-season visit since 1959, when the Lions notched a 45-21 victory, and only their second since 1949, when the Big Red won, 42-19.

The Cardinals this year will be competing against Cleveland, Pittsburgh and New York in the Century Division of the National Football League, with the Big Red going into a new division of the National Conference of the National Football league in 1970 when Cleveland, Pittsburgh and Baltimore move to the American Conference. Realignment of the National Conference will be completed in New York at a meeting opening on June 2.

Jeff City Wins State Prep Golf Title

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Jefferson City, led by medalist winner Tom McHenry's tying 105, took the state high school four-man golf championship by shaving nine strokes off the old tournament record.

Jefferson City's 445 for 27 holes broke the tournament record of 454 set by Columbia Hickman in 1967.

McHenry equaled the individual tourney record with a 3236-37—105. Par on the University of Missouri course is 35-3535—105. Bill Hess of Kansas City Southwest set the record in 1965.

St. Louis University high also broke the team record with a 453. St. Joseph Central had 462, Neosho 465, Kansas City Park Hill 469 and three St. Louis County schools — John Burroughs, Kirkwood and Riverview Gardens—tied at 470.

Athletes Honored During Awards Day

Five Sikeston high school athletes were recipients of special awards during honors ceremonies held at the Field House yesterday morning.

Four of the athletes were honored in sports and the other in an academic subject.

The J. Hershel Tyer Football scholarship fund award was presented to Bruce Farris, who quarterbacked the Bulldogs the past two seasons in which they shared in the Northern conference championship.

Fred Towns was recipient of the first Bill C. Ryan scholarship fund award. Ryan, a former high school standout athlete of the Bulldogs and an all-conference baseball player for Murray State, was killed in an auto accident last year.

Steve Counts, a member of the football and baseball teams, was honored with the J. Edward White award in Science.

Also presented at the assembly were letters to all athletes who lettered in any sport during the school term. Athletic Director Bill Sapp made the letter presentations.

Coach Sapp noted that the sports teams at SHS this past season averaged winning two out of every three contests.

Cash scholarships were awarded to Snelling and Jackson as well as Farris and Towns. All four participated in two or more sports during their prep careers.

Farris and Towns will attend Murray State niversity in Murray, Ky., on four - year, grant - in - aid scholarships. Farris was awarded his on his football talent and Towns for his basketball skills.

Jackson, Snelling and Counts have not announced their choice of schools, but all plan to attend.

FRED TOWNS (right) was named recipient of the Bill C. Ryan Scholarship Fund award yesterday during Sikeston high school honors ceremonies. Making the presentation was Charles Matthews (left). Besides the scholarship award, Towns will have his name engraved on a permanant trophy that will be kept in the trophy case at the new field house. Towns was named to the Class L all-state basketball team and received honorable mention as an all-american. He will further his studies at Murray State University in Murray, Ky., where he's signed a four-year grant in aid scholarship.

Indy 500 Preparation Thrown Off

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — The Indianapolis 500 could very well be won by a 700-mile engine this year.

The car handlers' schedule of preparation for the May 30 race was thrown off last weekend when the opening two days of qualifying were rained out for the first time in history.

The usual routine on a car that qualifies includes tearing down the engine and rebuilding it between qualifying and race day. But this year that period will be only five days at most, with qualifying scheduled Saturday and Sunday.

"It would be impossible to rebuild them all in that time," said Danny Jones of the Ford Motor Co. Monday.

The turbocharged Ford has proved to be the most powerful of this year's engines, and there are 22 of them.

Many engines were in pieces in the Ford garages and elsewhere Monday.

"Several of the engines out there for qualifying will be race day engines," Jones said. "Some will have 150 to 200 miles on them (from practice and qualifying laps). Usually they have only about 50."

Cars with turbo Fords have the four fastest speeds in practice so far, topped by Mario Andretti's lap of 171.789 miles per hour. But the Offenhauser engines are generally considered to be ahead in the important areas of reliability and fuel consumption.

West scratched himself from 500 activity this year, although he was not hurt. He went high into a turn and hit the wall while nearing the end of his rookie driver's test.

Sessions, ninth in last year's race, hit a wall after a universal joint broke. He has another car available.

Woman Golfers Holding Tourney

Women golfers from three states teed off at 8 a.m. today at the Sikeston country club golf course in the first Tri-State woman's golf association tournament of the season.

Golfers from Missouri, Kentucky and Illinois are entered. Trophies and prizes will be awarded winners.

NEW DELHI (AP) — Afsar Khan has claimed a world record for 176 hours of nonstop cycling.

He didn't say what the old record was. The organizers of the contest in Uttar Pradesh state presented Afsar with two new bicycles for his performance.

Fast Pitch League Meeting Set Tonight

The Sikeston Fast Pitch Softball League will hold a meeting at the Security National Bank at 7 tonight.

Election of a vice - president will be the first order of business, with the setting of the schedule also planned. A doubleheader is set for May 26 to open the season.

Division Leaders Increase Margin

Seven days in May do not a season make, but the soaring Baltimore Orioles will settle for reruns of the week that was all summer long.

Pausing in mid-flight Monday, a breath-catcher throughout the majors, the Orioles reflected giddily on a five-game winning streak on the road that has upped their American League East Division lead from one to 3½ lengths over the past week.

Despite a pair of one-run weekend setbacks at Houston, the Cubs have outgained the Orioles since last Monday, when they were three games ahead of Pittsburgh in the National League East. Today, they're six in front of both the sputtering Pirates and the spurting New York Mets.

The Athletics split four games during the week but still vaulted from percentage points behind Minnesota in the AL West to a 1½-game margin over the faltering Twins.

The Braves, 4-1, increased their NL West lead over second place Los Angeles from 2½ lengths to three. They lost a chance to pick up more ground Monday when they were rained out at Montreal in the only game scheduled.

Baltimore's Frank Robinson, who hit 10 home runs in April, has connected just once in 16 games this month. But the Orioles' pitching staff, suspect before the season got underway, has been winging along—and hatching goose eggs—without a hitch.

Jim Palmer, 5-2, leads the league with three shutouts. He's also been on the losing end of two shutouts—1-0 and 2-0. McNally, 6-0, who lost a no-hitter in the ninth inning at Minnesota last Thursday, has two blank jobs to his credit. So do Tom Phoebus, 4-0, and Mike Cueller, 4-4.

Shutouts also have been the forte of the Cubs' young pitching stars. Ken Holtzman, 6-1, who is scheduled to work at Los Angeles tonight, and Ferguson Jenkins, 5-2, have thrown three apiece. Bill Hands and Dick Selma have one each and reliever Ted Abernathy finished off another combined shutout.

John "Blue Moon" Odom, top winner in the majors with a 7-1 mark, has led the Athletics' surge past Minnesota. Reggie Jackson, 11 homers, Rick Monday, two grand slams, and Danny Cater, a .326 batting figure, are the big offensive guns.

The Braves, whose only loss in their last eight starts was a 9-3 late-inning collapse against the Mets last Wednesday, have been hit hard by injuries. They lost Rico Carty, dislocated shoulder, Tito Francona, dislocated thumb, and Orlando Cepeda hit on the batting helmet with a pitch, in weekend games at Montreal.

Accountant Says State Losing Millions in Intangible Taxes

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Failing to collect intangible taxes causes Missouri to lose millions of dollars each year, a Kansas City accountant said Monday.

Donald B. Schaumburg, partner in the Kansas City certified public accountants firm of Smith and Harder, told a special House investigating committee the state should be getting about $40 million a year from the tax.

Instead, he said, last year's revenue was only about $17 million.

The intangible tax is levied on interest earned on savings and securities at a rate of seven per cent for banks and credit institutions and four per cent for individuals and other companies.

Schaumburg said lack of knowledge by taxpayers of the nature of the tax was a big factor in the small amount received.

He said the state should require more detailed information from banks, credit institutions, organizations and individuals so the department of revenue could make more accurate determinations in computing the actual amount owed.

Cabinet Patronage Openings Growing

WASHINGTON (AP) — While the Nixon administration talks about taking politics out of the Post Office, more and more jobs are being created in other departments that could be used for patronage.

In the past month, the Agriculture Department has gotten authority to create 20 new positions in the Farmers Home Administration.

A department official said frankly the jobs are of "political interest."

"We wanted them available but we don't have any plans right now to fill them," he said.

Most other Cabinet members have asked for and received Civil Service Commission authority to create new jobs with fat paychecks that can be filled at the secretary's whim.

Although they could be used for patronage there is no indication of any plans now to use more than a handful as a political device.

The jobs in question fall under two categories known as Schedule C and Noncareer Executive Assignments or NEA.

NEA posts cover the so-called supergrades in the General Schedule or GS scale and carry salaries between $20,000 and $30,000. Schedule C covers the GS15 level—$19,780—and down.

Besides presidential appointments, the two categories are the main avenue for hiring and firing at will, skirting civil service rules that protect most other government employes.

The Housing and Urban Development said its NEA and Schedule C positions have increased from 86 to 95 and it wants six more.

Heath, Education and Welfare had 84 positions, now has 95 and is asking for more but won't say how many.

Transportation, which got authority to create five new jobs, was the only other agency queried that declined to say how many more it was seeking.

The Justice Department had 53 positions before innauguration, now has 60 and wants another.

These figures appear to be the firmest, but presumably because of their political nature the number of Schedule C jobs at any given time in any given department may depend on who's counting.

The Pentagon, for instance, reported to the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee last September that it had 75 Schedule C jobs in the office of the secretary of defense and others scattered in the branches of the service.

It reports no change now in any but the Navy which shows an increase from 14 in the report to Congress to 23 now. It also says the Air Force wants five more positions that would bring it even with the Navy.

The Civil Service Commission, however, says it has 86 schedule C positions listed for the office of the secretary of defense and that the Navy had increased six, not nine.

Although numerically small, the increase in potential patronage positions is occurring at the same time the administration is trying to end the age-old tradition of handing out postmasterships as political plums.

Under a bill now before Congress, the postmaster general would select postmaster candidates from the recommendations of review boards with Merit and ability the only criteria.

The slow but steady increase in available political jobs comes to light—perhaps coincidentally—as President Nixon reportedly is being urged by advisers to pay more attention to party politics.

There also has been grumbling among some Republican congressmen that there are too many Democratic holdovers, that not enough jobs are going to Republicans and that when they do the most deserving congressional Republicans are not being consulted.

An indication that more attention will be paid to the political area came several days ago with reports that Nixon had changed top political troubleshooters.

The 29-year-old John Sears, a former Nixon legal colleague, who had been the top White House man for political affairs, reportedly was demoted and replaced by Harry Dent.

Dent is a former South Carolina Republican state chairman and a former aide to that state's Republican senator, Strom Thurmond.

Wives Agree Tom, John And Gene Show Great

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — A little on the hammy side, perhaps, but the Apollo 10 wives agree that the "Tom, John and Gene show" is a television success.

"I thought it was great," said Faye Stafford, wife of flight commander Thomas P. Stafford. "The clarity was good. I really enjoyed it."

"I'm married to the biggest ham of all," laughed Barbara Cernan after watching the 24-minute space frolic Monday. "Weren't they great?"

Mrs. Cernan, wife of the moonship pilot, and Barbara Young, wife of the command module pilot, viewed the color television program at the Manned Spacecraft Center.

They came out smiling. Mrs. Young exclaimed, "Oh, that was beautiful." She said her husband "looked like he was having a good time."

"I wouldn't be a bit surprised at anything those guys would do," Mrs. Cernan admitted with a grin.

She said her husband looked "marvelous." Mrs. Young said John looked "the same as always." Stafford looked "pretty good," his wife said.

She also produced her kindergarten drawing of a rocket, complete with the figure of a little girl watching it take off. Then she went horseback riding.

For a while, Tracey considered naming her cocker spaniel's three puppies "Red, White and Blue," then decided one should be called Snoopy. Snoopy is the code name of her dad's moonship.

Union Says Actors Must Be Warned of Nude or Sex Scenes

NEW YORK (AP) — Actors Equity says actors must be warned before they sign a contract if they will be required to perform nude or engage in simulated sex acts.

Angus Duncan, executive secretary of the 16,000-member union, said Monday he hoped "hard sex acts, actual sex acts," would be ruled out altogether. But he said Equity would not rule them out, leaving the choice to the individual actor.

Under Equity policy, a producer must indemnify a performer in case of arrest, furnish bail, fines and legal counsel, Duncan said.

BRITISH WITHDRAW

NEW YORK (AP) — The Royal Dorset Yacht Club of England has withdrawn its 1970 challenge for the America's Cup, reports the New York Yacht Club.

Experienced observers abroad have speculated that present economic conditions in England were factors in the decision.

The British withdrawal leaves the French and Australians as the only challengers for the 12-meter yacht race set to be held off Newport, R.I., next year.

Bluff Man Gets Sentence For Draft Law Violation

CAPE GIRARDEAU — A Poplar Bluff young man, James Lee Bower, was sentenced to five years in a federal penitentiary Monday in Federal District Court here for failure to comply with an order of his draft board to serve 24- months hospital duty in lieu of active military service.

He had pleaded guilty to the charge May 6 in the court here.

At that time, Judge Roy W. Harper delayed sentencing, pleading with the defendant to give more thought to accepting the employment in the University of Missouri Medal Center in preference to a prison sentence.

Today, Judge Harper gave the young man until June 5 to get his personal matters in order before reporting to the U.S. marshal. He also told the defendant should he reconsider the graveness of the sentence and decide to accept the hospital duty before that date, he should contact his court- appointed attorney, Wm. H. Frye of Cape Girardeau.

A condemnation suit involving land in Butler and Dunklin Counties also opened this forenoon following the criminal case.

Why do Catholics believe so strongly?

Free "capsule" study will help you to understand

People of other faiths often wonder why Catholics insist on accepting beliefs which frequently work hardships upon them. Why, they ask, do Catholics want to maintain their own educational systems, practice strict birth control laws, deny themselves divorce and re-marriage freedom? Why, in fact, are they willing to accept so much self sacrifice as part of their creed?

Is it because Catholics accept their doctrines blindly and without question? Certainly not! The Catholic religion, founded on faith, is totally logical and totally reasonable. It has held a universal appeal to billions of people for centuries on end for that very reason.

In the interest of inter-faith harmony, Catholics want to be understood by members of other denominations. That's why the Knights of Columbus offer this course of Catholic instruction by mail. There's no cost or obligation of any kind and no one will call on you. Mail coupon today.

Check our price stickers against what competition's stuck with.

You'll find all 15 big Chevrolets we build—passenger cars and wagons—are lower priced than any comparable competitive models.

Our price stickers make good reading. But they only tell part of the story of how you come out ahead with a Chevrolet.

They don't tell you, for example, that the biggest, most powerful standard V8 in Chevrolet's field is under Chevrolet's hood.

Or that our standard six is more engine, too.

Or that you get Astro Ventilation in every model. Plus such peace-of-mind advantages as a side-guard beam built into every door.

Or that we build the only walk-in wagons in our field, complete with a convenient step in the rear bumper.

All of which really makes our price stickers that much better reading.

Mothers Should Talk to Children, Ask Questions that Stimulate Them

By BARBARA LACY

Don't throw away your Sears catalog and do keep talking, parents, if you want to help your pre-school child.

This advice comes from Dr. Merle B. Karnes formerly of Chaffee, and now professor of special education at the University of Illinois. She has been involved as a consultant to an experimental program at the Sikeston Regional Diagnostic Clinic, and was in town 2 days last week.

She was talking especially to those who work with low-income, handicapped, or under-achieving children, but her advice and ideas are good for parents of all children.

She feels that the average child will get along. That's why she has always been interested in the child who had trouble learning or who learned quite fast.

Her starting point is language.

"One reason we find children so deficient in language," she says, "is that they are always told to keep quiet. Their mother teaches them that by being quiet they are a good boy or girl.

"Or, the children are sent to watch television. You may say, 'why, if they watch television, look what they are exposed too.' But they can sit in front of the television an hour, and not learn a thing, if they haven't learned to process information. I guess they are just fascinated by the motion.

"Yet, I can't always blame the mothers who keep the children quiet or send them in to watch television. This is the only way a mother with many children keeps her sanity.

We say one of the most important factors in a child's development is the interaction between him and a parent, but we don't necessarily mean a blood-parent. It can be anyone who takes an interest in the child."

One of the most effective workers is an older sibling. In Illinois, "We brought brothers and sisters in, trained them, then sent them home to work with their younger brother and sisters for several hours each week. We paid them while we trained them and for every hour they worked at home. In six weeks the younger children's I.Q.'s had gone up 10 points. That is an exceptionally good gain.

"Also, the older children were motivated to do better work in school. I understand that this technique is used in several foreign countries." Dr. Karnes added, "and I thought that I though it up."

The friendly blonde lady, who looked not at all like a doctor with an impressive list of published studies behind her laughed, "that just proves again that nothing is ever really new in this world.

The program she was talking about is part of a preventive program for pre-school children; to prevent cultural retardation which is just as damaging and as permanent as physical retardation or brain damage.

The program at the Sikeston clinic is similar; it is to provide seemingly retarded pre-school children with a variety of experiences and academic training.

"We don't talk about middle class children because they are usually stimulated at home. The mother talks to them all day long. 'Now it is time to fry the hamburgers. I must get out the skillet. Now we can set the table.'

"When middle class children go to nursery school the parent says 'teach my child how to get along with others.' And that is really all he needs to know. He has learned everything else at home.

Dr. Karnes was showing slides and exhibiting learning materials she had made as she talked.

The games were made by pasting pictures from catalogs, gift-wraping paper, or other sources of 8 by 10 inch pieces of poster card in a bingo like order. Matching pictures are pasted on cards small enough to just cover their mate on the bigger card.

Some sets were of animals, flowers, birds. Others were hand drawn and colored shapes; triangles, circles and squares.

"Let's think of all the ways we can use these," she said as they were examined. "Don't go to all the trouble of making something, unless you think of many ways to use it.

"This type of game could be used to teach color, shape, number, sets, sequence -- all visual learning experiences."

But she wasn't finished "Let's not just make visua associations. Always have the children talk about what they are doing. 'This is a triangle.' "

"We always reward children for making a verbal response," she added.

She feels that each child should have his own game.

"We stress total involvement. If you have one care on the board and ask one child at a time to come up to the board and match a picture, you have one child at a time learning. If each child has his own card you have every child at work. With each child responding at the same time you have total involvement; total learning.

"We found recently that we were not encouraging enough creative thinking and problem solving. We so often ask questions that call for simple answers.

"Now we make it a point to ask question that have a variety of answers: 'What would you do if you spilled your milk? 'What you would do if it was cold outside and you didn't have a coat?'

"At first the children just gave on answer. In a few weeks they had loosened up a bit and were really able to think.

The two-day session at the clinic drew to a close and Dr. Karnes gathered up her material - the games separated into a multitude of brown paper envelopes. "Never throw anything away," she said refering to the materials her games are made from.

There wasn't time enough to continue. But Dr. Karnes will be back in July and August with more ideas for the teachers at the diagnostic clinic.

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- The new Charmin Paper Products Company, is making progress on two fronts -- construction and employment, according to plant manager James I. Bowman. The picture shows that five and one-half acres of the building is now under roof. Completion of the huge plant and opening of the plant is set for late late summer, with 100 employees now in training. By late 1970 the company anticipates a total employment of 500 persons.

The Prayer
from The Upper Room

There are varieties of gifts, but the same Spirit; and there are varieties of service, but the same Lord . . To each is given the manifestation of the Spirit for the common good. (I Corinthians 12:4-5, 7, RSV)

PRAYER: Father, help us to dedicate our lives to You that whatever ability we have becomes a blessing to others and a glory to You. In the name of Jesus we pray. Amen.

Tensions High at Lincoln U.

Students occupied the Student Union May 9 in a peaceful sit-in and stayed there four days until urged by Rep. J. B. Banks (D-St. Louis), Atty. Gen. John Danforth and the presence of state highway patrolmen to leave.

Why did they do it?

The students, predominantly Negroes and led by a 30-member steering committee, were trying to get a list of about 50 grievances -- in the form of demands -- before the administration for negotiation.

After the students evacuated the Union, a committee of administration, faculty and students began deliberation and negotiation on the students' demands.

Prominent among their demands were an end to mandatory ROTC on the Lincoln campus, athletic contracts for scholarship athletes and improvements in housing conditions.

Enrollment figures at Lincoln have tripled since 1954 -- from about 700 to approximately 2,200. The school -- founded in 1866 as an institution of higher learning for Negroes -- was integrated in 1954.

In the past 15 years, during the tripling of enrollment, physical facilities at Lincoln have just doubled, according to James Saunders, public relations director at the university. New buildings include a fine arts center, an auditorium, a gymnasium, a high school for teacher training, the Student Union, a new ROTC building, and a general maintenance building -- but only two dormitories, housing a total of 250 students.

Saunders said, "The space we have now is adequate for the number of students we're now servicing," but added that a new library and more dormitories could be well used.

Students, however, are a little more outspoken on the facilities. The complain of unsanitary and rundown conditions in two of the university's seven dorms -- the athletes' dorm and one freshman dorm. Saunders admits they are in pretty bad shape, but he contends this is the result of a normal year's use and they will be back in good condition by next fall.

Lincoln's seven dorms house 900 students, Saunders said. The rest of the 2,200 - member student body lives in apartments or their parents' homes. And, Saunders said there have been many complaints from students seeking housing in Jefferson City about discrimination. He added that Lincoln today is about 50 per cent Negro.

Complaints of discrimination are turned over to the State Human Rights Commission for investigation and mediation, but he said none has gone to court.

On legislative appropriations for Lincoln, Saunders said, "I think they've been fair to us." He added that before 1954 a rather "loose view" was taken toward the university by the Legislature, but since integration "the Governor and the Legislature have treated the university very fairly."

But still the question -- why a demonstration?

Saunders said, as far as he knew, Dean of Students Ben Pugh had never received a list of grievances of the kind embodied in the demands presented during the sit-in.

The 40-demand list was not presented to the administration until after occupation of the Union. The students subsequently were unable to get through to Lincoln President Earl Dawson -- and the administration, despite some strong support for the students from faculty members, refused to discuss grievances until the Union was vacated.

Johnny Anderson, a member of the student steering committee, has another story. He said he submitted a similar list to Dean Pugh last summer.

Paugh admitted Anderson had offered such a list and said he had asked Anderson to redraft the rough, sketchy proposals for administrative consideration.

What happened to the list? Anderson said a committee of administrators, faculty members and students was to have been organized by the administration last September to consider student grievances. He said he was waiting for the committee to crystallize before redrafting his proposals.

Pugh has been sympathetic with student grievances, and it was at his request that state patrolmen finally left the campus May 14. He had said he will resign if forced to take disciplinary action against students involved in the demonstration.

But what ever happened to that committee?

"It just never got off the ground," Dean Pugh said. "It just never got off the ground."

HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT 'SAFETY-IZES' MO. ROADS

The Missouri Highway Department is in the process of trying to add more control for the out-of-control vehicle. Provisiions include a safety zone, break-away signs, elimination of concrete drainage boxes in the median and putting the ends of guard railings into the ground.

Lyle V. McLaughlin, assistant to the chief engineer, said new interstates will have those provisions and existing interstate is being changed to meet standards set down by the department.

Previously, McLaughlin said, the ends of guard rails were straight and would allow an out-of-control vehicle to hit the end, perhaps driving the rail through the car.

Several years ago, on Interstate 55, two persons were killed when more than 60 feet of guard rail went through the car before the car stopped. "At 27 inches off the ground, the guard rail was just at the place where it could puncture a car," McLaughlin said.

The department is cutting the tops off of drainage boxes almost even with the ground and replacing them with grates, to prevent a vehicle from striking the box.

"Although the grates will not be as effective when it come to drainage,they should save lives," he said.

Sign posts are being fitted with a slip plate. When a car hits the post it will break away instead of remaining stationary. Many signs have been moved back 30 feet off the road McLaughlin said, creating a wider safety zone on the side of the road.

McLaughlin said research has shown that 75 per cent of out-of-control cars can be brought back into control within a width of 30 feet after the leave the road. All signs, lights and other hazards to the car are being moved back 30 feet. Missouri was the first to develop and implement this safety zone, McLaughlin said. The clear area also calls for a slight slope rather than previous high, steep roadbeds, eliminating the need for many guard rails now in existence.

SENATE STOPS WORK; WANTS TO FINISH MONEY BILLS

With appropriations and tax bills due to come up on the floor, this week should be an interesting on in the Senate and may see Republicans calling the action.

The upper chamber adjourned a day early, on Wednesday, last week to enable the Appropriations Committee to meet uninterrupted through the weekend, if necessary, to complete work on the House-passed money bills.

This apparently clears the way for the measures to be the first order of business this week.

It was the original intention of the Senate leadership to consider tax - increase bills first, but Republicans balked at this.

In a letter the Majority Leader A. Basey Vanlandingham (D-Columbia), Republican caucus chairman Sen. Richard Webster of CArthage said the GOP senators oppose considering tax increases before it is known how much money the state will need.

Although they are only 11 in number, the Republicans may be the deciding factor in the fate of the tax measures in the 34-member Senate. The "Young Turks", numbering about 15, will oppose an increase in the individual income tax which is supported by Gov. Warren E.

Although they are only 11 in number, the Republicans may be the deciding factor in the fate of the tax measures in the 34-member Senate. The "Young Turks", numbering about 15, will oppose an increase in the individual income tax which is supported by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes and seven "Old Guard" senators. Since neither Democratic faction has enough votes to pass its program, Republicans will be the decisive influence if they vote together, which is expected.

It remains to be seen which side they will take.

WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT YOUR PRESCRIPTION:
What it is...and what it isn't
Your prescription is an order for a specific medication, for a specific individual, for a specific time. It is originated by your doctor and filled by your Registered Pharmacist. Today's prescription consists of eight specific and essential parts:
1. Date — included to verify the medicine is applicable to a current illness.
2. Name and address — so that none but the patient may use the prescription.
3. Superscription — "Rx"... the symbol generally believed derived from the Latin "recipe" meaning "take thou."
4. Inscription — the name and quantity of each ingredient prescribed.
5. Subscription — directions to the pharmacist explaining dosage, form and quantity of the pharmaceutical.
6. Signatura — directions to the patient on quantity, timing and method of taking the prescription.
7. Refill information — for use by the pharmacist to facilitate service to the patient.
8. Signature — of the prescribing physician to verify the order.

Court Overturns School Board's Decision on Hair

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

While long hair may be a woman's pride, it was the horror of a school board when its young men began to take equal pride in their long hair.

In fact, when the situation reached the point where you couldn't tell the hims from the hers without a formal introduction, the Board passed a regulation outlawing long hair for male students. Immediately, several students attacked the legality of the regulation in court.

"Look their best?" queried the members of the school board. "The fact is, they look like hairy baboons. And, since their long hair is a distraction to both themselves and everyone else in the school, and has an adverse effect upon their performances as students, the regulation is absolutely legal and necessary!"

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you uphold the validity of the regulation and depart the students from their long hair?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! He held that a person has a constitutional right to present himself or herself physically to the world in the manner of his or her choice so long as it's not unhealthy, obscene, dangerous to others, etc. In this case, concluded the court, there is no evidence that long hair constitutes such a menace or that it's a distraction to students or effects their performance as such.

GAUGE OF GREATNESS

Our new book, "Eisenhower: A Gauge of Greatness," is unique among all those that have been published thus far about the war time general and peace time President.

Relman Morin, two-time Pultizer prize winner, who knew Dwight D. Eisenhower for a quarter of a century, spent months writing this magnificent life, the only complete one ever written.

Much of the information Morin could supply from his own experience—he first met General Eisenhower in North Africa, and later helped cover his two presidential campaigns. Moreover he had interviewed the general dozens of times, and had talked to him by the hour to gather information specifically for this book. But above all, he had been given access to Eisenhower's files of personal correspondence. The result is a detailed, colorful, 140,000-word account providing deep insights and much new intelligence on a figure of world importance. It measures Eisenhower the soldier, the politician and the statesman by the gauge of greatness he himself set up.

The illustrations, some previously unpublished, were taken from the vast files of The Associated Press, and also from the National Archives, from Signal Corps files, and from the Eisenhower Museum at Abilene.

The reaction of a newspaperman who read the book in proof form may be typical of that of many readers—"There is so much in it that I never knew before."

It's a big volume, 8½ by 11 inches, bound handsomely in dark green linen and stamped in gold. There are over 85 illustrations in black and white and full color the pages total 264.

Classic Jazz Musician Dies

NEW YORK (AP) - Coleman Hawkins, whose pioneering techniques on the tenor saxophone were a foundation of modern jazz, died Monday in Wickersham Hospital. He was 64.

Hawkins, known to his friends as "Bean," had continued to perform until a month before his death.

A native of St. Joseph, Mo., Hawkins was the first full tone and loud volume on the instrument. He developed this technique in the mid-1920s with Fletcher Henderson's Orchestra at the Roseland Ballroom.

Hawkins joined Mamie Smith's Jazz Band when he was 18. From the late 1930s on, he led his own bands. Only a month ago, he appeared at New York's Fillmore East with a quintet.

In 1939 Hawkins recorded "Body and Soul," regarded as one of the jazz classics. But he was admired as well for his ability to adapt to new styles, and was in the forefront of the "bebop" era in the 1940s, with the record "Woody 'n' You."

Hawkins had been ill for some time. A hospital spokesman said he died of bronchial pneumonia.

Scharz Asked to Testify About Insurance Rates

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The superintendent of the State Insurance Division was asked Monday night to appear before a special House committee investigating insurance rates in Missouri.

Robert D. Scharz was asked through James P. Dalton, chief counsel for the division, to appear to answer questions of the committee at a meeting scheduled for Wednesday night.

The committee, headed by Rep. Thomas D. Graham, D Jefferson City, was critical Monday night of failure of the division to take action against firms suspected of having high premium rates.

Dalton told the committee he thought the state's laws applying to action on excessive rates was too broad. He said he thought it would be too hard for the division to prove a firm's rates were excessive.

Graham said there was evidence of discriminatory insurance rates in Missouri but it would be futile for the committee to recommend any changes in the law if the insurance division doesn't even want to try and take action against those firms.

Dalton also said he thought insurance rates on motor vehicles were excessive but "I can't say positively."

Nixon Plan Designed to Make Draft Predictable

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's plan to reform the draft is intended, in part, to make the Selective Service system more predictable and equitable. But it won't make it less complicated.

Q—What's Nixon trying to accomplish?

A—He wants to reduce uncertainty and permit draft-age men to plan their futures sooner and more confidently.

Q—Why can't they plan that way now?

A—They are subject to the draft at any time during a 7-period year between the ages of 19 and 26. If they ever have a deferment, their liability is extended to age 35.

Q—How would Nixon's plan change that?

A—It would assign each man a specific year, at age 19 to 20, when he is most likely to be drafted and tell him in advance how far down the list he stands. His chances of induction would decrease each year after that.

Q—Can the President do that now?

A—Yes and no. He has legal authority now to reduce the draftable age group from the present 19-to-26 range, down to a one-year range at age 19 or 20. But the law requires that within the designated draft-age group, the oldest must be drafted first. Nixon is asking Congress for an amendment to the draft law so he can change that system.

Q—What's wrong with taking the oldest first?

A—In a one-year draft pool it would mean that those with the earliest birthdays would always be the first drafted, and those with late birthdays would be the last to go.

Q—How would Nixon solve that problem?

A—He would have draftees in each year selected by a type of lottery. First the days of the year would be scrambled into a random order and the draft-eligible men would be arranged in the same order by matching their birthdays with the scrambled calendar.

Those sharing the same birthday would be further distributed by scrambling the alphabet and matching it to the initials of their last names.

The result—scrambled first by birthdays, then by alphabet—would establish a clear sequence of who goes first, second, third, and so on.

Q—How would the chance of induction decrease in later years?

A—The President didn't say specifically. But a White House aide said it probably would mean that those past their "prime year" would not be drafted unless and until those still in a "prime year" had all been inducted.

Q—Could a man still obtain a deferment or an exemption?

A—Yes. But when it expired, would re-enter the draft pool at the same position he originally held in his age-group's sequence of call.

A—A "selective service year" would be established, depending when Congress authorizes the plan. Those men who are 19 years old when each "selective service year" begins would be the "prime" draft group.

Thus, their period of vulnerability would extend from some time after their 19th birthdays to exactly a year later. As their "prime year" ends, these men would enter a less-vulnerable category and a new group of 19 year-olds would become "prime" for a year.

Q—How would men already draft-eligible between 19 and 26 be divided up?

A—They wouldn't be. They would become—all of them—the first "prime" group in the first selective service year, and would move as a group into less-prime categories in succeeding years.

Q—Could college students still be deferred?

Q—How about graduate students?

A—Deferments now are permitted for graduate study only to medical and ministerial students. Nixon would leave it that way, but would guarantee that a graduate student who is drafted be permitted to finish out his current academic year.

Q—Is the Nixon reform plan complete?

A—No. Nixon directed the National Security Council and the Director of Selective Service to review present practices concerning draft deferments and exemptions and to report to him by next Dec. 1. He indicated some new guidelines for administration of the draft might be necessary.

Hearnes Labels Senate Cutback Backward Step

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes said today he thought the Senate was acting precipitately on sharply cut appropriation bills in an effort to keep the public from knowing what cuts have been made.

"I don't understand just what their object is," he told a news conference, "but this is just about the most gigantic backward step the state of Missouri could take."

The governor said the thought a particular mistake on the part of the Senate Appropriations Committee was to eliminate all capital improvements money. Skipping even one year in major repairs and construction, he said would be a big error.

The committee finished slashing about $17 million off the House-passed money bills Sunday and scheduled floor debate on them for today. Only general reports have been made to the public about what has been cut, Hearnes said.

Presbyterians Call on U.S. to Recognize Cuba

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — The United Presbyterian general assembly called upon the U.S. government today to recognize Fidel Castro's Cuban government and lift the trade embargo against Cuba.

A paper on Latin America, sharply critical of U.S. policies concerning Latin America, called for a complete rethinking of Washington's actions and programs in that part of the world.

The statement on Latin America was approved by a standing vote of more than half the voting commissioners at the annual meeting.

In the early morning hours, the assembly authorized the planning on a $50 - million fund-raising campaign for the poor to start at least one year from now.

Douglas Gambling Ties Draw Scrutiny

WASHINGTON (AP) — The foundation headed by Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas has cashed in a $2 million jackpot in selling its stock in a firm which owns three Las Vegas casinos.

A foundation official said Monday the holdings were sold in early March—two years after Douglas had described the stock as "an irrevocable gift."

The Supreme Court justice has drawn fire in Congress over his salary as president of The Albert Parvin Foundation and its ownership ties with plush Las Vegas gambling palaces.

Douglas has been paid approximately $85,000 over the last seven years as the Foundation's only salaried officer, tax records show.

Congressmen have called for an investigation of Douglas and his foundation's stock in Parvin-Dohrmann Co., which owns the Stardust, Fremont and Aladdin hotels and casinos.

The foundation's secretary and treasurer, Harvey Silbert, Disclosed in a telephone interview Monday that 21,791 shares in Parvin-Dohrmann were sold during the first week of March at $91.75 each. This would result in a purchase price of just under $2 million.

The $2 million price was five times the value listed for the foundation's Parvin-Dohrmann stock when Justice Douglas' role first became known to the public in 1966.

At that time, Douglas wrote Chief Justice Earl Warren:

"There has been criticism of the (stock) portfolio of the foundation. Except for minor items, the selection of the portfolio was made solely by Mr. (Albert) Parvin and was transferred by him to the foundation as an irrevocable gift."

Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., entered the letter to Warren in the Congressional Record this month in charging that Fortas had not returned the Wolfson check in 1966 "until after Justice Douglas had been caught with his hands in the same cookie jar."

The foundation's latest public tax records covering 1967 reported Parvin-Dohrmann holdings totaling 31,291 shares. When the other 9,500 shares were sold is unknown. But Silbert said the 21,791 sold in early March were the last ones held by the foundation.

Tax records show the foundation sold its stock two years ago in Del E. Webb Corp., which operates other casinos at Las Vegas and Lake Tahoe, Nev.

Douglas has said Parvin, a Los Angeles business executive, organized the foundation in 1960 after reading the jurist's lectures on the growing menace of communism. The foundation provides fellowships for foreign students at Princeton and UCLA.

"We're training the future prime ministers of underdeveloped countries in our democratic institutions. It is a tremendous project and I commend it to you," Douglas said last Saturday.

Parvin sold his stock in the Parvin-Dohrmann Co. last October when the firm was taken over by Chicago executive Delbert W. Coleman.

Baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn has promised an investigation of holdings in the company by owners of the Atlanta Braves and Oakland Athletics.

Joint Committee Studies Ways to Elect President

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The best and safest way to elect a president and vice president was the topic of a joint House - Senate committee meeting Monday night.

U. S. Rep. William L. Hungate, D-Troy, took part in the hearing, one he called a pulse-taking mission to see how Missouri's Legislature would react to an electoral reform.

Hungate is a member of the House Judicial Committee which is considering several proposed changes in the method of electing the United States' two top office holders.

Because, he said, any change in he federal constitution would require ratification by three - fourths of the states, he and other members of the committee are sounding out individual state legislatures to see how they would react to proposed changes.

Most of the testimony Monday night centered on a proposed change that would elect the president and his running mate by direct popular vote. It would, however, require the winning candidate to get at least 40 per cent of the vote. Failing that, the two top contenders would participate in a runoff election.

Other methods being considered by the U.S. House of Representatives would:

Require presidential electors to cast their ballots for the candidate winning most of the state's votes. This would preclude the faithless electors who, as happened last year, can now disregard the votes cast in his state and cast his electoral vote for the candidate of his own choice.

A proportional system - favored by President Richard M. Nixon during his campaign - which would divide a state's electors according to the vote of the state.

That method was approved by the U.S. House committee recently and Hungate said it should come up for debate in the near future.

Rep. Richard J. DeCoster, D-Canton, objected to the runoff portion of that measure because, he said, it would be just another big expense. Hungate agreed and said it could be another case where the candidate with the most money - to conduct his campaign, would stand the best chance of winning.

Sen. Ronald L. Somerville, R-Chillicothe, said he was opposed to any change in the method of electing the chief executive.

He said he thought the proposed popular vote method would allow a candidate to capture the election by winning only ten of the most populous states, the same thing that can happen now by capturing the states with the most electoral votes.

One witness said the present method required the candidates to listen to the concensus of the populous in each state and, he said, that was more important than the fact one man might be able to win by a few votes.

Finger Tip Service is Available As Good Car Care Comes In Cans

Last year the U.S. Motor Vehicle Bureau registered over 80 million passenger cars, and that number is increasing every year with a total of 114½ million predicted for 1985.

Cars need care, and the Aerosol Division, Chemical Specialties Manufacturers Association, lists dozens of products now packaged in spray form to do the various jobs needed to keep your auto in the best possible running order.

The place to start your car care is under the hood, with an aerosol engine cleaner. A de-rusting spray will loosen nuts and bolts and remove any rust, and a carburetor and choke cleaner will spray away the carbon buildup.

You can stop here if you wish, or go on with some of the protective items that help keep the motor and other working parts in condition.

A high-heat engine enamel, specially made for cars, will make the oldest engine look factory-fresh, and also provide protection against rust and weathering.

You can also buy aerosol coating for your battery terminal, fan belt and ignition system which will cut the wear and tear on these parts, saving you some costly repairs and a lot of annoyance.

Now you can turn your attention to protecting and prettifying the outside of the car. Your de-ruster is handy here too, for loosening nuts on the wheels. Has the paint been marred or scraped? You can buy touch-up paint to match almost any U.S.-made car, a lot cheaper than a body-shop paint job.

A combination cleaner/wax will save you the time and trouble of scrubbing the car, and for a really high sheen, use your cleaner/wax first and spray over it with plain auto wax. Then spray a chrome protector on your fenders and other metalwork.

An aerosol windshield washer is next — antifreeze additives make this another double-duty product — and it's time for the finishing touches. There are aerosol cleaners for almost every type of upholstery, and a tire cleaner to brighten up those whitewalls.

Teflon spray-glide can be helpful in dozens of places — window frames, hood, trunk and door latches, accelerator, brake and clutch pedals and many others. Finally, tuck a car deodorizer spray into your glove compartment and you're ready to roll.

Or are you? Did you remember all the aerosol safety products that add the extra plus to your own safe driving? A fire extinguisher is important, and an aerosol tire inflator so easy a woman can use it might be a "lifesaver" for night driving.

Winter brings its own problems — and the aerosol industry has solutions to many of them. Do you have trouble starting your engine in cold weather? Spray some starting fluid into the carburetor and listen to it turn over. Defogging and de-icing agents are a must, and the latest aerosol item on the automotive shelves is a traction spray for the tires, to drive yourself out of that snowbank.

Aerosols can handle almost all your car care, except perhaps to drive to the service station and fill up the tank. The CSMA gives these tips for proper use: (1) read the label; (2) store away from heat; and (3) keep out of the reach of children.

First Test Track Built in 1915

Proving grounds were introduced by the industry in 1924. But what probably was the first test track designed specifically to test and evaluate production vehicles was built by a Detroit auto maker back in 1915. A half-mile planked track circled a steel-fabricated "hill" more than 40 feet high, which cars had to climb prior to leaving the factory.

Cars were also required to plow through a sand pit and travel around the track at all speeds before being approved for shipment. Before the track was built, newly-assembled vehicles were tested on nearby city streets.

Drugs and Driving Don't Mix, Association Warns

So important is respect for drugs in insuring highway safety that N.A.R.D. is providing fact sheets for driver education teachers in and out of high school, according to executive secretary Willard B. Simmons, who represents 40,000 independent drugstore owners.

Druggists are teaching the public the power of drugs. Drugs save lives, Simmons points out. He adds facts of interest to all drivers.

"When doctors prescribe some valuable medications they insist that no driving be done for a specified number of hours," he says. "Heed their advice and the advice of the druggist who reminds you of that fact."

In addition to urging respect for the life-saving drugs of daily life, members of N.A.R.D. are lending their professional efforts to schools to forward the work of drug education. The dangers of drug abuse are being brought to students' attention at the request of the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs of the Department of Justice.

BARBITURATES, for example — known as "goofballs" and by other terms — produce slurred speech, impaired motor responses, sensory distortion and more. A person withdrawing from barbiturate abuse may have spasms and convulsions, particularly dangerous behind a car wheel. Barbiturate overuse plus alcohol can cause sudden death.

* * *

AMPHETAMINES — stimulants which have respected medical uses but are known as "pep pills" or "co-pilots" to drug abusers — can cause severe hallucinations on the road. Truck drivers, vacationers, long distance drivers may take too many amphetamines to stay awake. Too frequently the driver will then hear "voices," see "ghost vehicles" and have other aberrations that can cause a crash.

* * *

MARIJUANA, thought by some teens to be harmless, is a major villain when it comes to highway safety. Unlike an ordinary cigarette, "grass" causes sensory distortions. A car 10 feet away may seem 100 feet away. Sideswipe accidents are common and more serious collisions can occur.

* * *

LSD PRESENTS DOUBLE DANGER. Not only does taking it cause an immediate disoriented "high" and bizarre hallucinations, but the same effects can occur with no warning six months or a year later. The "afterflash" effect can jeopardize not only the driver but his passengers as well as other drivers and pedestrians nearby.

* * *

If a driver exhibits drunken behavior but there is no aroma of alcohol, drug abuse may be suspected.

* * *

These and other facts are being called to the attention of students and faculties at all schools as well as to concerned parent groups.

What can the safe driver do to protect against these hazards?

* * *

STUDENTS ARE BEING URGED to seek medical facts and study recent clinical research so that objective data can be given to all. Poster contests and slogan contests in high schools and other student efforts are being encouraged, to turn the cold light of reason on drug abuse. And parents, teachers and all adults are being urged to call for drug education in the schools.

Helpful Tips on . . .

How to Get More Miles Per Gallon

Two drivers of the same automobile may get different gas mileage due to the differences in driving habits. Other factors include driving conditions and mechanical condition of the automobile.

It costs almost 50% more to drive 80 mph than it does to drive 50 mph. Cost of driving 60 mph is 25% higher than cost of driving 30 mph.

- Wet driving conditions: Slowing down under wet or snowy conditions conserves fuel. Wet pavement can reduce mileage by 1 mile per gallon.
- When parked, turn off engine. One minute of idling uses more fuel than restarting uses.
- Starting and stopping. Avoid "jack rabbit" starts, sudden stopping and racing on the green light.
- Windy conditions. Drive slower if you're interested in better fuel economy.

* * *

Here are some suggestions on care and mechanical condition of your car for better fuel economy:

- Use good grade of gasoline recommended by the manufacturer of your automobile.
- Be sure tires are inflated properly.

SHORT TAKES ON CAR CARE

In cleaning your windshield, don't forget the inside. Tobacco smoke can put a film of residue on the glass and distort vision. So, if you smoke, periodically clean the windshield with a window washing solvent.

The average spark plug will fire 15,000,000 times in 10,000 miles of driving. The effects of the electrical charge wear down the plug's firing end. Plug manufacturers recommend servicing plugs at 5,000 miles and replacing them at 10,000 miles.

Car Care Cuts Air Pollution

What Helps Here Also Saves Money for Auto Owner

Good car care takes on added importance these days — to you, your pocketbook, and the air you breathe. This is especially so if you own a car built during the past seven years, according to the American Petroleum Institute.

If your car is a 1963 or later model, it is equipped with a device to control pollutants that would otherwise come from the engine crankcase. If you own a 1968 or 1969 model, it also has a system for reducing tailpipe emissions.

These devices and systems, however, will continue to work properly — and, what's more, allow the engine to perform satisfactorily — only if you have your car checked regularly. A periodic tune-up will save you money in fuel and repair costs, give you a smoother running car, and help cut down on air pollution.

1963: Crankcase Controls

The first device to control automotive pollution was installed nationally in all 1963 cars. The device — called the "positive crankcase ventilation," or PCV valve — was designed to recirculate unburned hydrocarbons back to the engine where they have another chance to burn.

Formerly, these unburned gases (called blowby gases) escaped past the piston rings into the crankcase, where they were vented into the air. Installation of the PCV device cut total hydrocarbon emissions from the typical car by 24 per cent, compared with cars without the device.

The PCV valve will continue to do its job in controlling hydrocarbon emissions if it's periodically inspected and serviced as required under your car warranty. Otherwise, you may be in for trouble. Over a period of time, crankcase fumes tend to build up gums or varnishes. These could cause the valve to stick and not function.

Result: Poor Starting

If the valve gets stuck in the open position, the carburetor will feed the engine too lean a mixture of fuel and air. The result: poor starting and possible frequent stalling while you wait and idle at a stoplight.

In the more likely event that the valve sticks in the closed position, crankcase fumes will be trapped in the crankcase. These fumes will either escape through the oil filler breather cap (if the breather cap is clean), or form sludge in the crankcase. This can create corrosive acids, which ruin engine bearings.

The best way to prevent formation of these acids is to have the valve checked each time you have your oil changed or engine tuned.

Most car manufacturers recommend periodic replacement of the PCV valve. This can be done inexpensively and easily by your service station mechanic. This preventive maintenance can prove to be cheap insurance against an expensive bearing replacement job.

1968: Exhaust Controls

The second significant step in automotive pollution control occurred, nationally, with the installation of exhaust control systems, beginning with 1968 cars. These systems are designed to control both hydrocarbon and carbon monoxide emissions.

Beware! Shower Can Make Road Slippery

Summer showers, especially after a long dry spell, can make road surfaces as slippery as winter ice, a special safety bulletin issued by the Rubber Manufacturers Association warns.

The danger of skidding is greatest, says the trade group, during the first 15 to 30 minutes after it starts to rain; up to an hour or more in a light drizzle.

This is due to the little-known fact that rain tends to float up onto the road surface a greasy film of oil, gasoline and rubber residue which becomes a treacherous ice-like lubricant between the tires and the road until enough rain falls to wash it away.

The possibility of an accident on a wet road, says the Association, is between 5 and 10 times as great as on a dry road, in terms of the likelihood of a skid and loss of control of a car. In terms of stopping distance, it may take up to four times as far to stop on a wet road as a dry road.

Overheating Can Be Forestalled By These Checks

While most cars made today have cooling systems that are "sealed" in the factory, a wise motorist still takes precautions against engine overheating. Here are some basic precautions to take to make sure your car keeps its cool.

Test the anti-freeze to make sure it hasn't lost its rust inhibiting elements. If it has, drain and flush the cooling system before installing new anti-freeze.

Test the condition and tension of all drive belts as well as radiator hoses. Check the radiator and hoses for leaks. Also check pump gaskets and tightness of the pulley hub on the water pump.

Check to see that there is no foreign matter on the cooling fins and that the overflow tube is not obstructed.

Sports Car Roar From Sedan May Signal Trouble

Has your family sedan started to develop a sports car "rap"? Instead of taking it to Watkins Glen or Lemans, better check your exhaust system. That deep-throated roar under the chassis undoubtedly means your exhaust system is defective.

Not only might it earn you a traffic ticket for making too much noise but it could mean a death sentence for you and your family. A leaky exhaust is a potential source of lethal carbon monoxide.

When you hear a noisy exhaust, head straight for your favorite service outlet. Better yet, have a mechanic check your exhaust system next time your car is on the hoist.

FURRY CAR

GLASGOW, Scotland (AP) — A "furry" motor car belonging to a Scottish businessman shows this notice in the window when it is parked: "You can touch it. It won't bite."

The effect is achieved by painting the car with epoxy resin, then depositing man-made fibers on it by a high voltage electricity technique.

The car owner, R.B. Whitehead, runs a Glasgow firm that normally provides this kind of finish for interior walls of hotels and bars.

"MISS DEXTER" 1969 MODEL -- Miss Kathi Edwards, a vivacious 5' 2", 115 - pound brunette beauty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Duane Edwards of Dexter, was named to the dual role of "Miss Dexter" of 1969 and the 1969 "Strawberry Festival Queen" in competition with 68 other lovelies. She is shown here (seated) being crowned by the present "Miss Dexter", Miss Vicki Smyth. Chosen as first alternate is Miss Paulette Wilburn (left) and second alternate Miss Sue McCanne, flank her, as members of her court. (Staff Photo by E. J. Mays)

Kathi Edwards Named 'Miss Dexter'

BY E. J. MAYS
STATE EDITOR

DEXTER -- Miss Kathi Edwards, the beautiful 17-year-old brownette daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Duane Edwards, displaying poise and graciousness that won the hearts of a capacity crowd of better than 500 persons, was named to the dual role of "Dexter Strawberry Queen" and "Miss Dexter" for 1969 Monday night. She suceeds retiring Miss Vicki Smyth.

Miss Paulette Wilburn, 16, daughter of Mrs. Bessie Parris, was named as first Alternate, and Miss Sue McCanne, 16, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Joel McCanne, was named the second alternate in the beauty contest that set a record entry with the 69 hopefuls parading the stage in sportswear and formal dress attire, prior to the selection -- which came after three hours of pondering by a trio of out-of-town judges. Miss Wilburn was sponsored by Lucille's Beauty Bar and Miss McCanne by Jay's Music Store.

Miss Edwards, whose soft brown eyes accent her beauty, is a five foot, two inch, 115-pound junior, who entered the contest just prior to the closing deadline, under the sponsorship of the Dexter Citizens Bank. In fact, she entered so late her name did not even appear on the printed program and was placed as number 68 on the otherwise alphabetically arranged program.

It was evident from her initial appearance that the poise and carriage she displayed in the opening showing that she had caught the attention of the well behaved audience, and when she was included in the "final 10," predictions of her winning were audible amid the crowd.

Also included in the final 10 were: Mary Ann Bess, Cindy Johnston, Judith Larsen, Mary Webber, Kay Williams, Beverly Smyth -- sister of the 1968 winner -- and Vicki Davis.

The new "Miss Dexter" begins her reign Thursday morning when she opens the competition in the strawberry picking contest involving the defending champion Kiwanis, against the Jaycees and the Lions Clubs.

Miss Edwards was attired in a blue pants formal dress of blue taffeta, with an Empire waist and a lace overdress that lent elegance to her dark complexion -- bespeckled with tears at the announcement of her win in this, her first beauty competition.

She was crowned by Miss Smythe, the retiring "Miss Dexter" and presented a $50 bond, gifts and flowers by Mayor Willis Conner.

Miss Inez Sapp, gave the master of ceremonies assignment a professional air as she braved the three and one-half hours aside the microphone in an excellent rendition of the contestants backgrounds, their attires and their sponsors.

Mrs. Charles Acord likewise handled the pianist duties of the extended presentation in professional mien while Mrs. Pearl Warren, president of the Business and Professional Womens Club -- the sponsoring agency -- and Mrs. Claude Arnold, chairman of the event, kept the program moving in fine style -- thanks to the aid of many alert committeewomen.

Prisoners Threaten Ray's Life

Avery said Monday word of the threat, which came in a telephone call, "had a lot to do" with his decision to keep Ray in a maximum security cell after his normal six-week stay which finished at the end of April.

W.E. Hopton, director of the Tennessee Bureau of Criminal Identification, said he had heard nothing about the threat. The TBI normally would be called upon to investigate any such incident, especially one involving the Tennessee state prison where Ray is serving a 99-year sentence.

Avery said he talked with the caller 20 minutes, traced the call and was able to identify the caller.

Allies Seize Hamburger Hill

SAIGON (AP) - American paratroopers and South Vietnamese infantrymen captured a North Vietnamese mountaintop fortress overlooking the A Shu Valley today in the 10th day of hard fighting for the position.

The U. S. Command said 426 North Vietnamese and 43 Americans were killed in the seige of 3,000-foot Dong Ap Bia mountain, close to the Laotian border. Another 273 paratroopers were wounded, including 45 in the final push today.

The allied force was increased nearly five-fold during the night, bringing it to more than 1,000 paratroopers and 400 South Vietnamese. Then they stormed the mountaintop from four sides, killing 75 North Vietnamese in the drive.

The final assault began at 10 a.m., and an hour and 45 minutes later one battalion from the 101st Airborne Division that had suffered heavy casualties in 10 previous assaults made it to the top and held.

As the paratroopers advanced, the North Vietnamese poured down a steady stream of rocket and hand grenades and peppered the slopes with machine gun and small arms fire.

At 11:20 a.m., the battalion commander, Lt. Col. Weldon Honeycutt, 38, of Columbus, Ga., radioed from his command helicopter overhead that "the enemy is streaming off the hill," headed southwest toward Laos. Fifteen minutes later North Vietnamese rear guard units began firing tear gas on one of the paratrooper companies, but a brisk breeze blew most of it away.

At 12:10, Honeycutt radioed: "There are a whole bunch of North Vietnamese wandering around in front of Alpha Company. They don't have helmets and they just seem to be in a daze."

Associated Press correspondent Jay Sharbutt reported from the battlefield that Charlie and Alpha Companies began receiving rocket grenade and mortar fire on the hilltop two hours after they had seized it. They halted their advance, while another paratrooper battalion moved out after the retreating North Vietnamese.

A total of four battalions made the final assault, three of them from the 101st Airborne and the fourth from the South Vietnamese 1st Infantry Division.

U.S. intelligence officers told Sharbutt the mountaintop appeared to be the headquarters base of the 29th North Vietnamese Regiment. They said it appeared that the headquarters elements pulled out during the night, leaving an estimated battalion of about 400 troops to delay the allied assault.

Sharbutt reported the once heavily jungled mountaintop looked like a forest fire had swept through it after the 10 days of heavy bomb, napalm and artillery strikes.

A South Vietnamese battalion moving up the mountain met only light resistance. It found a three-inch telephone cable that was believed to have connected the mountaintop base with North Vietnamese bases in Laos.

The paratroopers found many partly collapsed bunkers with dead North Vietnamese soldiers inside, apparently killed by the U.S. bombing and shelling.

The mountain commands a portion of the 25-mile long valley, which is the biggest enemy supply and staging area in the northern part of the South Vietnam.

Elsewhere-

Enemy gunners kept up their nightly rocket and mortar attacks with more than half of dozen reported Monday night against U. S. bases, U. S. headquarters said two Americans were killed, 14 were wounded and four helicopters were damaged in a mortar attack on the headquarters of the U. S. 9th Infantry Division 42 miles southwest of Saigon.

Spacemen Follow True Path

by HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Racing "right down the slot" toward a Wednesday rendezvous with the moon, Apollo 10 explorers today studied lunar maps—doing their "homework" for 2½ dangerous days in moon orbit.

Their target, a sliver of silver light, loomed larger and larger as their home planet, earth, shrank in the distance, nearly 200,000 miles away.

As the astronauts spent a leisurely day coasting deeper into the black void of space, Air Force Col. Thomas P. Stafford reported they were studying the charts and flight plan for the critical lunar orbit portion of the pathfinder mission.

"We've got a little time to kill here," Stafford said, "so we're going over our lunar activities, just doing our homework so we'll be ahead of the game when we get there."

Navy Cmdr. John Young spent much of the morning exercising Apollo 10's navigation equipment, charting a course by the stars.

Mission control and commercial networks did not receive the picture because satellite communications and land line systems were not activated at the time. Madrid recorded the program— showing the earth, with emphasis on Africa and India—and some interior shots in the cabin.

The capsule communicator at mission control, astronaut Jack Lousma, passed the good word that Apollo 10 was on such an accurate path that a course change planned for early afternoon would not be necessary.

The astronauts said their sleep was not bothered by thruster firings as it was on their first night in space.

Mission control had passed up instructions to change the method of rotating the spaceship during the night. The procedure eliminated the need for the automatic firings which resulted in what the astronauts called "dull thuds."

The astronauts reported all systems operating flawlessly on the command ship and the lunar landing rocketship module (LEM) linked to its nose.

Mrs. Collins, John Scott Receive Service Awards

Mrs. Keith Collins, chairman of volunteer workers for the Child Development Center at Lincoln school, was honored Monday night when a plaque was presented her by Lewis Wiggins, president of Missourians Men's Club.

The plaque reads, "For Outstanding volunteer service rendered to the Child Development Center. Signed, The Missourians, 19691."

John Scott, administrator for the Development Center, also was presented with a plaque for his administrative leadership from Omega Psi Phi, an international civic fraternity.

The Center is in charge of 50 volunteer women of Sikeston, for the biracial group, for children of three, four and five years old.

Nixon, Thieu Set Meeting

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon and South Vietnamese Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu will fly to Midway Island in the Pacific June 8 to discuss a common policy toward a peaceful solution to the Vietnam war.

"The two presidents had desired to hold such a meeting as soon as feasible in order to establish personal contact and discuss together the conduct of the war in Vietnam and the search for a peaceful solution," said the announcement made here and in Saigon.

The one-day meeting, suggested last Saturday by Thieu, will be the first session between the two chief executives. Thieu met in Honolulu last July with thenPresident Lyndon B. Johnson.

Although the announcement did not mention U.S. troop withdrawals and South Vietnamese elections, these topics probably will be on the agenda, qualified sources said earlier.

The groundwork for the first meeting of the Vietnamese chief of state and the new U.S. President was laid in Saigon last weekend when Secretary of State William P. Rogers held extensive talks there with Thieu.

The Vietnamese president said in a statement Saturday he hoped to meet with Nixon because he felt it was necessary to set up a common policy.

Midway is the scene of a turning-point battle in the Pacific in World War II—a dot of an island 1,149 miles west of Hawaii.

One casualty is his commencement address at Ohio State University June 7. Vice President Spiro T. Agnew will substitute for him, the White House said.

The Nixon departure point will be his newly purchased Spanish-style residence on the Pacific shore at San Clemente, Calif.

Before leaving Saigon Monday, Secretary of State William P. Rogers agreed a summit would be useful. Rogers spent four days in Vietnam attempting to reassure the Thieu regime about Nixon administration policies.

Vietnamese diplomatic sources here showed concern over a section of President Nixon's latest peace program for Vietnam which called for elections to be held as soon as possible under international supervision.

The Vietnam officials contend that elections held before 1970 would upset the constitutional process and open the door to an unconstitutional coalition form of government.

The United States has reassured South Vietnam that it would not take part in any plan to impose a coalition government, but there was no agreement as the timing of the election.

On the issue of troop withdrawals, the Vietnamese want assurances of appropriate U.S. air and artillery support before American combat divisions are replaced by Vietnamese on the fighting front.

Nixon hasn't mentioned any timetable but some U.S. officials appear optimistic that improvement of South Vietnam forces and the situation on the battlefield will make possible a U.S. withdrawal sometime in mid-summer. South Vietnamese sources have suggested September or early fall mark the start of the replacement program.

Hearnes Offers Arson Reward

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes said today he is offering a $500 reward for the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who committed arson at Lincoln University Monday night.

He said he thought things were under control now "because it is daylight.

"The sad part about all of this he said, "is that so many students must suffer because of the actions of a few criminals. And they are criminals. Arson is a felony punishable by imprisonment for up to 10 years."

House Approves Gas Tax Hike

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The House today passed 105-48, a bill to boost the state motor fuel tax from 5 cents a gallon to 7 cents.

The bill would not, however, become effective unless the approve a constitutional change that would permit issuance of up to $500 million in highway bonds to speed up construction of need highways.

The proposed constitutional amendment passed the House 98-31 May 15. It has not yet been sent to the Senate committee. If it passes both Houses it then would be subject to voter approval.

Meanwhile, the Senate has passed a proposed constitutional change to permit use of highway funds to help pay off toll road bonds. The House has shelved a similar proposal.

Arson, Shots Bring out Troops

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The sound of shotgun blasts filled the air briefly Monday night on the campus of Lincoln University while firemen were quelling fires in three campus buildings.

The highway patrol called the fires arson and said the shotgun blasts were fired from two and possibly three dormitories. No one was injured.

Officials said about 100 highway patrolmen, sheriff's officers and police remained on the campus overnight and 200 National Guardsmen were called to the scene.

A group of students launched a series of peaceful demonstrations on the campus about two weeks ago in support of a list of 35 demands, including social academic and athletic grievances.

A three-day sit-in that began May 9 and ended shortly after highway patrol troopers were called in and Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth got a court order evicting the students from the student union building. The troopers were removed, and representatives of the students, faculty and administration met to work on the problem.

Some students continued to boycott classes. The administration charged them with a "breach of faith" and said Monday negotiations could not resume until the students cooperated.

Late Monday afternoon, what was termed a minor cafeteria disturbance broke out. Chairs and tables were overturned and some windows were broken.

The fires broke out then around 10:30 p.m. and as police and firemen arrived on the campus there was a brief flurry in which rocks and other missiles were hurled about the campus. The interior of a lounge in the new student union was destroyed by flames. Memorial Hall suffered minor damage and a blaze in the library was quickly extinguished, but another fire broke out a short time later causing extensive damage.

The shotgun blasts were fired from the dormitories, the patrol said, while firemen were fighting the second fire at the library. Patrol spokesmen said some officers answered the blasts by firing shotguns in the air and the shooting quickly ended.

Dean of Students Ben Pugh, shortly after 1 a.m., appealed to "men of Foster Hall and Allen Hall, please come out. No harm will come to you."

About 75 students emerged from two dormitories where some of the shooting occurred. They were surrounded by officers and marched to the gymnasium.

Pugh said school officials would meet today to decide their next step and whether disciplinary action should be taken against any students involved.

He said he wanted to talk with one young man who called for violence in a speech before the Union Building early in the evening.

Fire Chief Don Hunter estimated damage to the three year-old union building at $50,000. A book store in the building was gutted and the adjoining cafeteria suffered water and smoke damage.

Fireman Jim Nichols suffered a severe wrist cut while fighting one blaze. He was treated at a hospital and returned to the campus.

A rock broke a window in a fire truck and a red light was knocked off a police car but no other equipment damage was reported.

Hearing Set on June 3 for Telephone Breaking Suspects

Charles M. Shaw, Clayton, a well known attorney who has represented numerous underworld characters in the past, made an appearance this morning in Scott County Magistrate Court held at the Sikeston Police Station.

Shaw informed the court he was representing Mr. and Mrs. James H. Hampton, Kirkwood. They are charged with burglarizing and damaging several pay telephones in Sikeston earlier this month. Mr. and Mrs. Hampton are charged with five felonious charges and four misdemeanor charges each. They are free on bond. Hampton and his wife are also charged with tampering with telephones in Stoddard County. They are also free on bonds there.

After conferring with Scott County Assistant Prosecuting Attorney James E. Moore III, Shaw told Judge M. E. Montgomery that he wanted to have preliminary hearings for his clients June 3. The request was granted.

In another case this morning Prosecutor Moore suggested a careless and imprudent driving charge against Larry H. Scott, route four, Sikeston, be dismissed.

The state filed charges on Scott following an accident that occurred earlier this month on Highway 61 near Morley. Moore told the judge the accident occurred because Scott's car suddenly stalled and was partially on the highway when hit by an oncoming car. Moore also informed the court that Scott attempted to warn the approaching car before impact.

Judge Montgomery agreed with Moore's suggestion and the defendant's plea of guilty was set aside and the charge was dismissed.

"I can understand," Judge Montgomery said, "and since this gas war has started in Sikeston, my car has stalled several times too." Laughter ripped through the courtroom following the judge's statement.

The judge granted Arlene Y. Staggs, 840 Lynn, a week's continuance on a charge of giving wrong information to the welfare office.

Nathanial Wright, 318 Alabama, was also granted a one week's continuance by the court. Wright is charged with dumping a dump truck load of garbage in the middle of a road near Morehouse. Wright was not sure whether he wanted to plead guilty or not guilty to this charge.

Ocie Lee Davis, Commerce, was fined $10 for careless driving and $5 for failure to have an operator's license.

Jimmie Goin, Parma, was fined $10 for having an inadequate car muffler.

Albert Ray Jr., route four, Sikeston, was fined $10 for careless driving. Noah Ward Jr., Flint, Mich., was fined $40 for speeding.

Jerry W. Little, 613 Matthews, was fined $5 for failure to have a fishing license while engaged in the sport.

Jimmie Staggs, 948 Lake, was granted a one week's continuance on a charge of illegal possession of beer. His bond was set at $100.

A warrant was issued for the arrest of Ernie Green, Anniston, who failed to appear in court to face a charge of failure to have an operator's license.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
INVESTING IN CRIME

You don't have to be a professional pollster to know that the average citizen is alarmed at the national crime rate. One of the key phrases in the campaign oratory of the leading candidates in last year's race for the White House was "law and order". This despite the statements of the demagogues that the phrase held implications of racism. People are just fed up with the crime in the streets and everywhere else.

President Nixon has launched his attack on crime and the first phrase is to be against the organized variety; namely, bigtime gambling. This may at first glance appear to be the wrong place to fire the opening volley. After all, the majority of those who finance the gambling syndicates are the little people, the two-dollar bettors. The housewife who "invests" a few cents on the numbers. The factory worker who plunks down a few disposable dollars on a baseball, basketball or football pool ticket. We are not talking now about the intra-office pool, which is totally self-contained, winner-take-all. That is, all the money in the pot goes to the winners. None is sent on to the pros in the upper echelons of crime.

Our concern lies with those who unwittingly are investing in the crime wave. Their dollars and cents go into the coffers of huge organizations. These small investments furnish the syndicates the capital with which to expand operations in narcotics, loan-sharking and white slavery. Consider the ironic case of the housewives and breadwinners who donate hard-earned dollars to the very characters who are leading their children to narcotics addiction. Consider, too, the small-change numbers player, who is shocked when a son turns to robbery, or a daughter to prostitution to finance their own personal tragedies. Ladies and gentlemen, place your bets. You can't win, but think of the lifetime of self-guil' you may be acquiring at very low original cost.

HEARNES' COURAGE AT LINCOLN

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes acted with dispatch and right judgment to quash an illegal takeover of the Student Union building on the campus of Lincoln University. Had had not moved with courageous decision, this incipient revolt could have escalated into a riot.

He made it sharply clear he will not tolerate "demands" made in an unlawful way or sit permissively by while students of a state university transgress legal rights of citizens and pillage the desire of the majority of students to obtain an education.

"Because these sit-in students didn't tear up the building," the Governor told The Globe-Democrat, "is no reason they should be patted on the back.

"As long as I am Governor lawlessness will not be permitted in any Missouri institution under my jurisdiction."

The Governor declared that attending a state-supported college is "a privilege, not a right." Students, he considers, can make requests of a school administration, not "demands." The protesters at Lincoln submitted more than 50 "demands".

If the university administrators do not accede to student "grievance" requests, the students can "transfer elsewhere." Extortion or violence is insupportable.

In what he called an approximate smile, the Governor said "if someone owes you a debt, you can't collect it at the point of a gun."

Occupation of the Student Uion by recalcitrant students lasted four days. Mr. Hearnes could not act, however, until Monday after the demonstrators barred Dean of Students Ben Pugh from the building in an evert, illegal act. Previously they had permitted anyone to enter or leave.

The Governor then promptly asked Attorney General John C. Danforth to seek a court injunction. Mr. Danforth acted at once and got the order the same day. He is also to be commended for giving full warning to the revolting students and allowing 15 minutes for them to evacuate the building. They left promptly.

The conduct of State Representative J. B. (Jet) Banks, on the contrary, was that of phony peacemaker. He went into the Student Union to talk to the youths into evacuation. Report is some had already started drifting out, concerned over facing stiff fines or jail for contempt of court if they remained.

Banks promised to introduce in the Legislature a resolution to grant all the 50-plus "demands" - a proposterous move. The Assembly probably will not and should not get involved. This is distinctly an administrative issue.

This week is not the first time Mr. Hearnes has acted effectively to halt lawlessness. When rioting suddenly broke out in Kansas City during April, 1968, causing six deaths, scores of incendiary fires and $500,000 damage, the Governor quickly called out the State Highway Patrol and National Guard.

The riot was stamped out. Had he not acted fast, many more could have been slain and the damage manyfold.

Governor Hearnes lamented the gradual change over recent years that has led many bewildered citizens to close their eyes to depredations visited on campuses of the nation's universities.

After vacating the Student Union, negotiators representing students, faculty and administration of Lincoln University demanded blanket amnesty for all students who took part in the peremptory occupation of the building.

The Lincoln Board of Curators flatly refused such amnesty, as it should have done. Each case cited should be treated on its merits. Some student leaders should be expelled.

Some of the issues made by students merit administrative consideration, such as improvement in living quarters; some were just silly. But methods of illegal extortion cannot be condoned.

It is very reassuring that state administration in Jefferson City has stood fast in support of universities run by the universities, not overrun by lawlessness, restive segments of violence-prone student minorities.

CHEER UP!

A publication of the Arizona Farm Bureau observes: "There are over 200 million Americans in this country, and they are not all bad -- as some would make you think. Over 68 million are gainfully employed. There are over 180 million who are not commnists. More than 40 million couples will remain married and more than 178 million will not die of cancer. Over 50 million auto drivers will still be alive at the end of this year, and over 2 million new homes are being built to house 2 million happy newlyweds.

"So cheer up . . . your chances of reaching the age of 85 are excellent."

BREEDING BUREAUCRACY

Bureaucracy is a strange creature. It's like a balloon that won't burst. It expands by infusions of hot air. It is elastic and fills nearly any given void irrespective of shape. Citizens supply the atmosphere in which the monstrous bubble exists.

The hot air is usually supplied by bureaucrats or lawmakers. Huff. Puff. the bubble grows. Each idea fed into the balloon makes it grow bigger and bigger. Our government bubble is pushing hard on the extremities of its environmental casing, but gusts of air keep feeding into it.

It sometimes appears that each congressman is determined to place his stamp on the growing bureaucracy, perhaps thinking that if he does not push for more big government the folks back home will think him negligent. Thus he promotes bills that cost the taxpayer more dollars and increased red tape.

Another promoter of increased government bureaucracy is the man who thinks that every ill of society can be cured by some institution of the bureaucracy. If a problem exists, create a bureau of government of a Cabinet-level department to solve it.

Florida Representative Claude Pepper wants a top-level Department of Youth Affairs to solve the problems of youth. This department would be in charge of representing the nation's youth in the nation's policy-making councils. Under Mr. Pepper's concept, the Peace Corps, VISTA and the National Teacher's Corps would be transferred to the new bureau. You can be sure that the transfer of these three functions to a new branch of the federal octopus would not decrease the spending or the staffing of the departments from which they would be transferred. Why not create several departments? High schoolers have problems unlike those of college students. Perhaps we should have separate departments for the two. And another for grade school students. And, finally, how about a Department of Pre-school Affairs? On second thought, why don't we all just go on the dole? Each of us could then become a Department for Individual Affairs and let the government pay us!

PRAISED BY CARTHAGE NEWSPAPER
SYMINGTON'S STAND ON SPENDING

An Editorial From the Carthage Press - Senator Stuart Symington in a recent Washington Report he publishes periodically has some pertinent comments on the fiscal situation of our nation and steps he recommends to ease the burden of each one of us, the taxpayer. Senator Symington deserves the support of his constituents to bring this about and a letter to him would not be amiss.

He suggests:

"A thorough assessment of our nation's commitments both abroad and here at home, followed by a meaningful establishment of priorities, is long overdue. With the changing of administrations, there would appear no more opportune time than now to begin this all important task.

"Congress has been presented with a federal budget for the fiscal year 1970 of more than $195 billion, a jump of almost $80 billion during the last six years.

"If the succeeding six years produce a comparable budget escalation, the united States government would be requiring the taxpayers of America to put up $325 billion annually to support the Federal Government alone. This would be in addition to all state and local taxes.

"Such an increase, in the face of growing fiscal and monetary problems, would appear a difficult if not impossible burden for our people to bear.

"Accordingly, hard decisions must be made now, so that we may play our total expenditures in relation to our revenue and thereby limit future Federal deficits. If we are to continue as the number one nation, very possibly if our capitalistic system is to survive, some day we must survive, some day we must learn to live within our means.

"The dangerous rate of the inflation currently being experienced demonstrates clearly that increasing deficits - last year the Federal deficit alone was over $25 billion - are bound to lead to ever higher prices, and the effect of these inflated prices can only be particularly damaging to this nation's international balance of payments, with inevitable further loss of world confidence in the integrity of the dollar.

"It would be my suggestion that our nation now establish priorities so as to curb Federal expenditures, an arduous but essential task which now faces the Congress and the new administration. A strong and stable economy is not only essential to our prosperity and well-being, but also to our national security."

Missouri motorists were reminded today by Colonel E.I. (Mike) Hockaday, the Superintendent of the State Highway Patrol, that bicycles are much in evidence on streets and highways now that warm weather is here. He urged drivers to use extra caution when a bicyclist is in the traffic picture.

"Unfortunately, too many youngsters are permitted to venture into traffic without proper training," Hockaday stated. "They are not experienced in the handling of a bicycle and do not recognize traffic hazards. Much of the responsibility for the safety of bicyclists rest in the hands of the driver. The motorist should drive defensively when near a bicyclist. He should anticipate a sudden move by a youngster that might cause a collision."

The Patrol Superintendent noted that 13 bike riders were killed in Missouri last year. Several others were injured in collisions with motor vehicles.

Colonel Hockaday also called upon parents to do their part to help insure the safety of their children. He urged them to make sure their child's bicycle is in safe operating condition and to make sure the riders know the rules of safe cycling.

"Bicycle riders must observe the same traffic laws that apply to motorists," the Colonel pointed out. "They are expected to stop for stop signs, wait their turn at stop and go signals and signal their turns.

"Parents should instill in their children a respect for traffic laws early. Not only is their safety involved, but in a few short years these youngsters will be carrying the habits they have learned to the driver's seat of the family car," Hockaday concluded.

Steps Toward A New Image

Rep. Richard H. Ichord, new chairman of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, wants to change the name of that oft-criticized body and has introduced a bill to that effect for the second time.

"Un-American as a term is ambiguous," says the Missouri Democrat. "It's not a good legal term, and that concerns people who have more libertarian philosophies."

Ambiguous the term may well be, but controversial it definitely has been. It is doubtful, however, whether Ichord's suggestion or a new name -- the House Committee on Internal Security -- will be any more semantically palatable to those of more libertarian philosophies.

The words, unfortunately, carry connotations of the secret dossier, the knock in the night, the kangaroo trial and all the other depredations committed in the name of "internal security" by the Nazi SS, the Soviet NKVD and their like.

Probably no name would be palatable for an investigating body that hails people before it to inquire into their private affairs, activities and beliefs, which of necessity must employ the services of unidentified informers, which is not a court of judgment but which too often has given the impression of being one.

Another change Ichord proposes to implement involves the committee's investigative techniques. There will be fewer summonses for hostile witnesses who can be expected to refuse to testify under the Fifth Amendment.

"There is no purpose in bringing a Commie before the committee and asking him questions on which we know he is going to take the Fifth," says Ichord.

While it may be arguable whether only "Commies" take the Fifth or whether anyone who takes the Fifth is ipso facto a "Commie," this change in the committee's operations will be welcome if only for the fact that it may spare the nation any repeats of farcical hearings in the past which have not only tended to discredit the committee and ridicule the office of congressman but have led too many people to suspect that there may be something un-American about the U.S. Constitution itself.

UTOPIA ON HALF TIME

A study by the Southern California Research Council, a nonprofit organization for economic and social inquiries sponsored by educational and business groups, prophesies that within 17 years Americans will have to work only six months a year for the same standard of living that they have now. Presumably, this means that six-month vacations will be the rule by 1985.

Another recent press report quotes Special Assistant to the President for Consumer Affairs, Betty Furness, to the effect that one of the things that bothers consumers most now is trying to get an automobile or home appliance repaired. As our homes becomes increasingly automated and gadgetized, the problem of keeping everything in running order grows apace. Think what it will be like when repair experts work only six months of the year. It seems rather strange to contemplate millions of Americans spending six months of every year in leisure during the most productive times of life.

WHERE PROGRESS RESETS

Because many young people have professed scorn of a business career--preferring instead the "challenge" of some sort of "public service" -- the idea has become prevalent that young people by and large have turned their backs on careers in private industry. Studies by the National Industrial Conference Board and the Research Institute of America show instead that a high level of interest in business careers does indeed exist among college students.

The reasons for this interest were discussed by the chairman of the board of a large oil company. In the course of an Address before a group of university students. He reminded his audience that, "..in our great national effort to attack the problems of urban slums, race relations and poverty generally, business is playing a vital role. It provides jobs. It conducts training programs. It develops more efficient means to building low-cost housing.

"Increasingly, the government is looking to private industry to close the gap between legislative theory and practical reality in the conduct of programs designed to cure the ills of society. The role of business in these areas is expected to increase in the years ahead, expanding the opportunities for young people whose interests lie in that direction."

In the final analysis, it is business -- productive, taxpaying business -- that must provide the enterprise, the initiative, the capital and the productiveness upon which all progress ultimately rests. For this reason, the opportunities, and the challenges inherent in business careers are almost boundless -- for those willing to accept them.

COMMUNITY SELF-HELP

Government bureaucrats tell us that communities made up primarily of minority groups or low-income families cannot develop needed community spirit without government assistance. We are expected to believe that pride in one's neighborhood can come only as a result of government handouts.

This is obviously wrong. Government handouts decrease individual independence and deprive the individual of pride of accomplishment.

Self-help projects, on the other hand, in which residents of a neighborhood work together on local improvement, will bring about unity and a community spirit.

An example of this kind of self-help can be found in Orlando, Flordia. A minority group neighborhood needed a community center. Instead of asking for state or federal aid, the people in the area helped themselves.

They formed the Washington Shores Recreation Association which conducted a vigorous door-to-door campaign. When their initial effort fell short, they did not give up, but worked even better. After many hours of work, the goal was reached. The community raised a total of $125,000 for their new center.

Congressman Louis Frey, who represents the area in which this drive took place, expressed his pride in the Washington Shores Recreation Association. He added: "It is refreshing in today's society to know that initiative and independence are still a vital part of the American way of life."

Congressman Frey went on: "Opportunity is everywhere. It is waiting for those who have the courage and dedication to seek it out." The residents of the Washington Shores area had this courage and dedication. They should serve as an example to communities all over the nation. HLH

NEW YORK (AP) "Success robs you of a lot of fun," said Jacqueline Susann, the television actress turned author. "When I was 18 I used to dream of being able to eat caviar every day of my life.

However, Jackie, the current sensation of the publishing world, can afford to buy caviar by the barrel if she chooses to.

Her first novel, "Valley of the Dolls," sold more than 356,000 hard cover copies and over 10 million in paper back.

Her second, "The Love Machine," threatens to equal or surpass "Valley of the Dolls" as a best seller. Within a few days after publication some 300,000 copies have been printed.

Miss Susann also has received a $250,000 advance against expected paperback royalties, and she and her husband, Irving Mansfield, the television producer who acts as her business adviser, have turned down a million-dollar offer for the film rights.

"The Love Machine" details the rise and fall of Robin Stone, a brilliant and ruthless television executive. It is sprinkled with lively sex episodes, as was "Valley of the Dolls."

Jackie vehemently resents any implication that these episodes are put in merely to satisfy reader curiosity about the boudoir behavior of celebrities.

"I have never been clinical in a sexual description," she insisted. "Whenever I use sex, it is not for a prurient reason, but because it advances the plot and the story."

Using only one fast-flying finger on each hand, Miss Susann can type out as many as 30 pages in a daily work session that lasts from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m.

"I work in a den in the back of my apartment and keep the drapes closed. It's always night there. I find it impossible towrite if I look out the window and see the weather is nice."

She methodically rewrites each novel four times, using a different colored paper for each draft.

Already she has turned out 400 pages of her first draft of a third novel, tentatively entitled "The Big Man." In it, she said, she will explore again her basic theme—"how bare life is at the top among people who have lost the essential ability to communicate with other human beings."

Having achieved financial success, why does she still drive herself so hard.

"I don't know what I'm trying to prove," she said "It simply is a compulsion. I don't know myself what keeps me cooped up writing in a lonely room when I might be leading a lovely life on the Riviera."

Washington - Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson say: Earl Warren supports stricter law on judicial ethics; Fortas case falls in borderline area; toughest crackdown on judges occurred under FDR

WASHINGTON–Inside fact is that Chief Justice Earl Warren for six years has been quietly supporting a law to set up a code of ethical conduct for the federal judiciary. If this had been adopted there would have been no Fortas case, for all judges would have been required to file for public inspection their outside income.

A similar code has now been adopted for the House of Representatives following the Thomas Dodd and Adam Clayton Powell investigation, and is the healthiest development on Capitol Hill for honesty in government in Congressional history.

Unfortunately, the Senate, despite public indignation over Sen. Tom Dodd's behavior, did not go as far as the house. While Senators are required to list such outside income as book royalties, magazine and lecture fees, they are not required to public their much bigger and more vital income such as legal retainers, stock and bond investments.

Sen. Everett Dirksen of Illinois is not required, for instance, to list the income from his Peoria law firm despite suggestion that he sometimes goes to bat for his law clients on the floor of the Senate.

–Judicial Misconduct–

Chief Justice Warren's concern over a judicial code of ethics stems from the fact that there is a borderline area, not clearly define, in which judges may receive fees. Fortas was in this borderline area.

Such a case was that of Judge Harold Medina of the U.S. Court of Appeals in New York who, during most of his judicial career was Vice President of the J.A. Medina Coffee Company. Judge and Mrs. Medina were also featured in a paid Pan American airways advertisement carried by Time Magazine in January, 1954, promoting travel on Pan Am. That same week an antitrust suit was filed by the Justice Department against Pan Am in the southern district of New York, the New York, the jurisdiction in which Judge Medina Sat.

During the Roosevelt administration there was a tough crackdown on judicial corruption--the most severe crackdown in American history. Judge Martin Manton of the U.S. Court of Appeals in New York was convicted of taking a bribe. U.S. District Judge Albert Johnson in Pennsylvania retired after impeachment proceedings were started against him. Judge Warren Davis of the third Circuit Court of Appeals retired after Attorney General Francis Biddle recommended his impeachment.

U.S. District Judge John P. Nields in Delaware retired after an investigation was started of his decisions, one of them being a delay granted in the antitrust suit against the radio corporation of America after RCA's president, David Sarnoff, paid $5,000 apiece to Sen. George Moses of New Hampshire and Sen. John Townsend of Delaware, both big wheels in the Republican party.

On the Supreme Court during Roosevelt's day, justice Pierce Butler put himself in a position of obvious prejudice in a 1936 ruling in which the great northern railroad was given a $10 million tax break. Butler had once been an attorney for the Great Northern and other railroads and had promised the Senate subcommittee which investigated him prior to confirmation that he would step aside on cases involving the railroads.

Once the Senators who sat on that committee had died, Butler reneged on his promise and actually wrote the majority opinion in the great northern case. He was joined in his decision by Justice Josephus Roberts, who had been counsel for the Pennsylvania railroad for 30 years; Justice Willis Van Devanter, once Attorney for Union Pacific, and Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, who had represented many railroads. They all voted with their old clients.

Justice Van DeVanter, of Wyoming, was also criticized for taking an agriculture adjustment act payment from the federal government for his ranch at the same time he was ruling on the constitutionality of this act.

The record of some of these cases, detailed by Joseph Borkin in "The Corrupt Judge," induced the late Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee to introduce a code for ethical conduct of the judiciary. It failed to pass. Nobody seemed much concerned about ethical conduct in those days. Sen. Joseph D. Tydings of Maryland has now revitalized the old Kefauver code and made it stronger and with a little help from Sen. Dirksen it should now become law.

--Executive Ethcal Conduct--

The Fortas affair comes at a time when the ethics of the Executive branch of government are the highest in history and the ethics of Congress considerably improved. This highlights the little-known fact that President Johnson did more to improve ethics in the executive branch than perhaps any other President by requiring every top officials to file a financial statement with the civil service commission every three months. LBJ's action came at a time when there was need of ethical improvement.

President Truman had tried to require all cabinet members to file financial statements, but his Attorney General, Howard McGrath, indignantly resigned. And ethical improvement then stopped. It even retrogressed under Eisenhower. There was the initial spectacle of Nixon's $18,000 personal expense fund in 1952 which may have helped set the tone for the Eisenhower administration. For it was followed by the forced resignations of Harold Talbott, Secretary of the Air Force; Sherman Adams, assistant to Eisenhower; Peter Strobel of the general services administration; Richard Mack of the federal communications commission; Carl O. Hansen of the farm home administration, all because of conflicts of interest.

There was also the case of the home at the Aiken, S.C., golf course especially built for Eisenhower by his big business friends, the equipping and refurbishing of the Gettysburg farm by wealthy contributors and the subsidizing of all farm expenses by W. Alton Jones of cities service, Billy Byars and George E. Allen.

Today, however, ethical standards in the executive branch of government are high.

Ann Landers

Nutty Maid Cleans Floor in the Nude

Dear Ann Landers: A few weeks ago I engaged a cleaning woman to come in twice a week and help with the floors and silver polishing. Mercedes is somewhere between 35 and 40. She has a spectacular figure but her face would stop the town clock.

Yesterday Mercedes told me she was going to give the floors a badly needed scrubbing and wax them by hand. Her last words to me were, "Please keep the boys and Mister out of my way when I work." (Frequently Mister and the boys, aged 14 and 12, come home for lunch.)

Mister did indeed come home for lunch that day and when he walked into the kitchen he was white as a sheet. "What's wrong?" I asked. "Have you seen the cleaning lady lately?" he asked. "No" I said, "Why?" "Well, he replied, "you'd better check."

I went to the back hall and opened the library door. There was Mercedes on her hands and knees, waxing away -- naked as a jaybird. "Looks real nice, doesn't it?"she said proudly.

I told Mercedes the floor looked lovely but that she'd have to put on some clothes because the Mister was home. She said in a most emphatic tone that she can't do floors "all bundled up," and to please keep the men out of her way.

Ann, she's the best cleaning woman I've ever had. I need your advice and I need it fast. Help! — Long Island Lu

Dear Lu: Mercedes sounds like a jewel, though a bit nutty. Tell her she must get her scrubbing and waxing done before noon and after 2:00 p.m. And ask her to please lock the door when she is doing the floors. Just in case.

Dear Ann Landers: I have lived in America only six months but I have already observed a fascinating phenomenon. Nearly all the married couples we know pretend they are faithful but in reality they are having affairs left and right, both the men and women.

In Europe such duplicity does not exist. I wish to make it clear, Ann Landers, that I am not criticizing the moral standards of Americans. I merely criticize the fakery. I firmly believe it is not normal to limit oneself to one sex partner. Mature people should be free to express their natural biological drives without damaging themselves or others. I deplore the hypocrisy. How much healthier it would be to show an honest face to the world. Small wonder the psychiatrists here are so busy. Everyone is sick from pretending. ---- Anonymous Please

Dear Anonymous: No name? Not even an initial? Why not show your honest face to the world?

If you have trouble getting along with your parents . . . if you can't get them to let you live your own life, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How To Get More Freedom." Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Spring Hunting Nears

By JOEL M. VANCE
Missouri Department
of Conservation

In the spring there often isn't the "crunch, crunch" of a pouncing squirrel searching through crisp fallen leaves for juicy hickory nuts or the crips bite of a north wind rifting light snow across a rabbit patch while the beagles work.

But all indications are that the spring squirrel and rabbit seasons, opening May 30, will offer the hunter some good shooting.

Briefly, the outlook on rabbits is better than last fall when they were on the low side of a population cycle. For squirrels, the picture is not as bright as last fall when they were numerous -- above average.

"I think spring rabbit hunting will be good," says Ken Sadler, game biologist for the Department of Conservation who specializes in rabbit management. "Rabbit populations last fall were lower than they've been for several years and low populations stimulate reproduction and survival. The animals try to fill the void."

Spring rabbit hunting is not a big sport in Missouri. Many beagle trials are held in the spring, but just for competition and not to fill a bag.

Farm boys huntings around haying time take many of the spring rabbits bagged. "You hear stores about farm boys running them down while their daddies are cutting hay," Saddler says.

Don Christisen, biologist on squirrels, says the evidence indicates bushytail populations will be down some in the Ozark regions, but not much affected in North Missouri.

"We had a good late fall squirrel population which pretty well cleaned out the nut crop in the Ozarks," he says. That's borne out by recent observations of turkey hunters. Hunters said turkeys were feeding in open areas, indicating there wasn't much mast left in the woods.

"When food isn't available, squirrels don't have as many or as big litters. Usually by September we have a good season, but it may not start as well this spring as it sometimes does."

He said about 15 to 20 per cent of the annual squirrel harvest comes in the first month of the season, June, and another 60 per cent or so in the prime months of September and October.

Christisen is author of a pamphlet provided free by the Department called Show Me Squirrel Hunting which gives a complete rundown of how-to's for the sport. It even includes a recipe for "Don's Fried Squirrel" to help the hunter's harried wife figure out what to do with the squirrels her husband brings home, an average of nearly two squirrels per trip and about seven trips per year.

Prep Coach Keynote Speaker At SEMO State All—Sports Banquet

CAPE GIRARDEAU — The "winningest" high school basketball coach in the country will be the speaker Thursday night (May 22) at the All-Sports Banquet of Southeast Missouri State College.

Walt Shublon, whose 14-year record shows 296 wins against only 26 defeats, will address the Southeast Missouri athletes at the dinner, which begins at 7:15 p.m. in the Group Housing Social Center on the campus. The banquet is sponsored by the Southeast Missouri Boosters Club.

Shublon, a graduate of Southeast Missouri, is the coach at Wyandotte High School in Kansas City, Kan. In 14 years his teams have won the state championship 10 times and finished in the runner-up spot three times.

The banquet will mark the close of intercollegiate athletics at the college until late August, except for 20 members of the team who will compete in the NCAA College Division finals at Ashland, Ohio, June 13-14.

On the whole, it has been a successful year for Southeast Missouri. Only real flops were the tennis team and golf squad, both of which finished last in MIAA competition. This was balanced, however, by the MIAA titles won by the football team and the track squad.

Neither the cross-country team nor the baseball squad performed quite up to expectations, but each had several successes during the course of their seasons, as did the wrestling and swimming teams.

It's the most important day in his life. Dean's list with honors or football hero ... this graduate deserves your thoughtful gift.

Eyes In The Dark

WARRENSBURG — Carl Conway peered through the lens of his sniperscope there in the dark, waiting breathlessly for signs of alien activity.

Was it a night patrol in Viet Nam? No -- it was a Missouri Department of Conservation agent trying out a "new" piece of equipment on potential illegal wall-eye fisherrhen.

Actually, sniperscopes are nothing new to combat soldiers, but they're unfamiliar to Missouri's conservation agents. Basically, a sniperscope is a device for seeing in the dark. Involved is a generator which sends out infra-red frequences which bounce back to be collected by the instrument and turned into a picture.

As it turned out, Conway, agent for Johnson county, got only a short look with the sniperscope and didn't see anything illegal, but he thinks the equipment may have great enforcement potential.

"The range is limited to maybe 200 yards," he says. He used it for 10 minutes on the Osage River and then the generator blew a fuse. "Maybe I could have changed it in the dark," he says, "But I wasn't sure and didn't want to alarm the people on the gravel bar by using a light."

Conway borrowed the scope from Wilbur Genier of Higginsville, a scientist working with a government grant who had bought the scope for $50 in Jefferson City and had been using it to study light."

Conway borrowed the scope from Wilbur Gunier of Higginsville, a scientist working with a government grant who had bought the scope for $50 in Jefferson City and had been using it to study bats.

A Warrensburg teacher, Jack Reynolds, who is a friend of Conway's, used the scope one night to look at deer in a Warrensburg Park and Conway went with him.

"What if," Conway started thinking, "I used it to spot walleye fishermen at night when the season is closed?"

During his 10-minute experiment, he found that the scope doesn't work well in brush. "The leaves and limbs reflect nd you can't see anything," Conway says. "But out in he open -- if we'd been in a boat on the river, for example -- it works fine."

There is a newer type of scope being used in Viet Nam now which uses vailable light -- even just starlight -- and collects it so efficiently that the scope operator can see by it. The infra-red scope is bulky and heavy. It involves a back pack for the generator and weighs nearly 40 pounds.

If game violators in he future feel, even under the covering cloak of darkness, that eyes are watching them ... they may be right.

Big Red Grid Schedule Set

ST. LOUIS -- A home opener against the Chicago Bears as part of St. Louis's biggest football weekend, and four home dates during normally pleasant November highlight the Football Cardinals' 1969 schedule, announced today by the National Football League.

In a switch from the last few years, the Big Red will play all its games on Sunday afternoons, with no Saturday or Monday dates. Two of the home games will start at 3:05 p.m., the others at 1:05.

The Cardinals-Bears game on September 28 will follow by a day the Missouri-Illinois duel at Busch Memorial Stadium, presenting a spectacular two-state football weekend. Missouri - Illinois tickets, by the way, must be obtained from the schools and are not available through the Big Red.

The November home dates include four of the five Sundays during the month, with the Cardinals at home November 2 against New Orleans, November 9 against New York, November 23 against Philadelphia and November 30 against Pittsburgh.

Minnesota and Cleveland are the other two Big Red home foes, with the Vikings arriving on October 16 and the Browns rounding out the card on December 14.

The Cardinals run temperature extremes in their road schedule, opening the campaign in Dallas on September 21 and closing it in Green Bay on December 21.

Chicago's appearance in St. Louis, first visit for the Bears since the Cardinals' 24-17 victory in 1966, is the only home date for the Big Red in the first four weeks.

Besides the opener at Dallas, the Cardinals will be at Pittsburgh October 5 and at Washington October 12, with the latter the first home game for the Redskins under new coach Vince Lombardi.

Perhaps the Dallas opener will be a good omen for the Big Red, without a victory over the Cowboys in their last five meetings. However, the Cardinals opened the 1963 and 1964 campaigns in the Cotton Bowl with solid triumphs.

The Vikings will be paying their first regular-season visit to St. Louis and also looking for their first victory over the Big Red. The Cardinals have won the previous outings, 56-14 in 1963 and 34-24 in 1967, at Minnesota.

When the Cardinals travel to Detroit, it will be their first regular-season visit since 1959, when the Lions notched a 45-21 victory, and only their second since 1949, when the Big Red won, 42-19.

The Cardinals this year will be competing against Cleveland, Pittsburgh and New York in the Century Division of the National Football League, with the Big Red going into a new division of the National Conference of the National Football league in 1970 when Cleveland, Pittsburgh and Baltimore move to the American Conference. Realignment of the National Conference will be completed in New York at a meeting opening on June 2.

The Big Red schedule (all times local, daylight or standard);

Athletes Honored During Awards Day

Five Sikeston high school athletes were recipients of special awards during honors ceremonies held at the Field House yesterday morning.

Four of the athletes were honored in sports and the other in an academic subject.

The J. Hershel Tyer Football scholarship fund award was presented to Bruce Farris, who quarterbacked the Bulldogs the past two seasons in which they shared in the Northern conference championship.

Fred Towns was recipient of the first Bill C. Ryan scholarship fund award. Ryan, a former high school standout athlete of the Bulldogs and an all-conference baseball player for Murray State, was killed in an auto accident last year.

Steve Counts, a member of the football and baseball teams, was honored with the J. Edward White award in Science.

Also presented at the assembly were letters to all athletes who lettered in any sport during the school term. Athletic Director Bill Sapp made the letter presentations.

Coach Sapp noted that the sports teams at SHS this past season averaged winning two out of every three contests.

Cash scholarships were awarded to Snelling and Jackson as well as Farris and Towns. All four participated in two or more sports during their prep careers.

Farris and Towns will attend Murray State niversity in Murray, Ky., on four - year, grant - in - aid scholarships. Farris was awarded his on his football talent and Towns for his basketball skills.

Jackson, Snelling and Counts have not announced their choice of schools, but all plan to attend.

FRED TOWNS (right) was named recipient of the Bill C. Ryan Scholarship Fund award yesterday during Sikeston high school honors ceremonies. Making the presentation was Charles Matthews (left). Besides the scholarship award, Towns will have his name engraved on a permanant trophy that will be kept in the trophy case at the new field house. Towns was named to the Class L all-state basketball team and received honorable mention as an all-american. He will further his studies at Murray State University in Murray, Ky., where he's signed a four-year grant in aid scholarship.

Indy 500 Preparation Thrown Off

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — The Indianapolis 500 could very well be won by a 700-mile engine this year.

The car handlers' schedule of preparation for the May 30 race was thrown off last weekend when the opening two days of qualifying were rained out for the first time in history.

The usual routine on a car that qualifies includes tearing down the engine and rebuilding it between qualifying and race day. But this year that period will be only five days at most, with qualifying scheduled Saturday and Sunday.

"It would be impossible to rebuild them all in that time," said Danny Jones of the Ford Motor Co. Monday.

The turbocharged Ford has proved to be the most powerful of this year's engines, and there are 22 of them.

Many engines were in pieces in the Ford garages and elsewhere Monday.

"Several of the engines out there for qualifying will be race day engines," Jones said. "Some will have 150 to 200 miles on them (from practice and qualifying laps). Usually they have only about 50."

Cars with turbo Fords have the four fastest speeds in practice so far, topped by Mario Andretti's lap of 171.789 miles per hour. But the Offenhauser engines are generally considered to be ahead in the important areas of reliability and fuel consumption.

West scratched himself from 500 activity this year, although he was not hurt. He went high into a turn and hit the wall while nearing the end of his rookie driver's test.

Division Leaders Increase Margin

Seven days in May do not a season make, but the soaring Baltimore Orioles will settle for reruns of the week that was all summer long.

Pausing in mid-flight Monday, a breath-catcher throughout the majors, the Orioles reflected giddily on a five-game winning streak on the road that has upped their American League East Division lead from one to 3½ lengths over the past week.

Despite a pair of one-run weekend setbacks at Houston, the Cubs have outgained the Orioles since last Monday, when they were three games ahead of Pittsburgh in the National League East. Today, they're six in front of both the sputtering Pirates and the spurting New York Mets.

The Braves, 4-1, increased their NL West lead over second place Los Angeles from 2½ lengths to three. They lost a chance to pick up more ground Monday when they were rained out at Montreal in the only game scheduled.

Baltimore's Frank Robinson, who hit 10 home runs in April, has connected just once in 16 games this month. But the Orioles' pitching staff, suspect before the season got underway, has been winging along—and hatching goose eggs—without a hitch.

Jim Palmer, 5-2, leads the league with three shutouts. He's also been on the losing end of two shutouts—1-0 and 2-0. McNally, 6-0, who lost a no-hitter in the ninth inning at Minnesota last Thursday, has two blank jobs to his credit. So do Tom Phoebus, 4-0, and Mike Cueller, 4-4.

Shutouts also have been the forte of the Cubs' young pitching stars. Ken Holtzman, 6-1, who is scheduled to work at Los Angeles tonight, and Ferguson Jenkins, 5-2, have thrown three apiece. Bill Hands and Dick Selma have one each and reliever Ted Abernathy finished off another combined shutout.

John "Blue Moon" Odom, top winner in the majors with a 7-1 mark, has led the Athletics' surge past Minnesota. Reggie Jackson, 11 homers, Rick Monday, two grand slams, and Danny Cater, a .326 batting figure, are the big offensive guns.

The Braves, whose only loss in their last eight starts was a 9-3 late-inning collapse against the Mets last Wednesday, have been hit hard by injuries. They lost Rico Carty, dislocated shoulder, Tito Francona, dislocated thumb, and Orlando Cepeda hit on the batting helmet with a pitch, in weekend games at Montreal.

Accountant Says State Losing Millions in Intangible Taxes

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Failing to collect intangible taxes causes Missouri to lose millions of dollars each year, a Kansas City accountant said Monday.

Donald B. Schaumburg, partner in the Kansas City certified public accountants firm of Smith and Harder, told a special House investigating committee the state should be getting about $40 million a year from the tax.

Instead, he said, last year's revenue was only about $17 million.

The intangible tax is levied on interest earned on savings and securities at a rate of seven per cent for banks and credit institutions and four per cent for individuals and other companies.

Schaumburg said lack of knowledge by taxpayers of the nature of the tax was a big factor in the small amount received.

He said the state should require more detailed information from banks, credit institutions, organizations and individuals so the department of revenue could make more accurate determinations in computing the actual amount owed.

Cabinet Patronage Openings Growing

WASHINGTON (AP) — While the Nixon administration talks about taking politics out of the Post Office, more and more jobs are being created in other departments that could be used for patronage.

In the past month, the Agriculture Department has gotten authority to create 20 new positions in the Farmers Home Administration.

A department official said frankly the jobs are of "political interest."

"We wanted them available but we don't have any plans right now to fill them," he said.

Most other Cabinet members have asked for and received Civil Service Commission authority to create new jobs with fat paychecks that can be filled at the secretary's whim.

The jobs in question fall under two categories known as Schedule C and Noncareer Executive Assignments or NEA.

NEA posts cover the so-called supergrades in the General Schedule or GS scale and carry salaries between $20,000 and $30,000. Schedule C covers the GS15 level—$19,780—and down.

Besides presidential appointments, the two categories are the main avenue for hiring and firing at will, skirting civil service rules that protect most other government employes.

The Housing and Urban Development said its NEA and Schedule C positions have increased from 86 to 95 and it wants six more.

Heath, Education and Welfare had 84 positions, now has 95 and is asking for more but won't say how many.

The Justice Department had 53 positions before innauguration, now has 60 and wants another.

These figures appear to be the firmest, but presumably because of their political nature the number of Schedule C jobs at any given time in any given department may depend on who's counting.

The Pentagon, for instance, reported to the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee last September that it had 75 Schedule C jobs in the office of the secretary of defense and others scattered in the branches of the service.

It reports no change now in any but the Navy which shows an increase from 14 in the report to Congress to 23 now. It also says the Air Force wants five more positions that would bring it even with the Navy.

The Civil Service Commission, however, says it has 86 schedule C positions listed for the office of the secretary of defense and that the Navy had increased six, not nine.

Under a bill now before Congress, the postmaster general would select postmaster candidates from the recommendations of review boards with Merit and ability the only criteria.

The slow but steady increase in available political jobs comes to light—perhaps coincidentally—as President Nixon reportedly is being urged by advisers to pay more attention to party politics.

There also has been grumbling among some Republican congressmen that there are too many Democratic holdovers, that not enough jobs are going to Republicans and that when they do the most deserving congressional Republicans are not being consulted.

An indication that more attention will be paid to the political area came several days ago with reports that Nixon had changed top political troubleshooters.

The 29-year-old John Sears, a former Nixon legal colleague, who had been the top White House man for political affairs, reportedly was demoted and replaced by Harry Dent.

Dent is a former South Carolina Republican state chairman and a former aide to that state's Republican senator, Strom Thurmond.

Wives Agree Tom, John And Gene Show Great

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — A little on the hammy side, perhaps, but the Apollo 10 wives agree that the "Tom, John and Gene show" is a television success.

"I thought it was great," said Faye Stafford, wife of flight commander Thomas P. Stafford. "The clarity was good. I really enjoyed it."

"I'm married to the biggest ham of all," laughed Barbara Cernan after watching the 24-minute space frolic Monday. "Weren't they great?"

They came out smiling. Mrs. Young exclaimed, "Oh, that was beautiful." She said her husband "looked like he was having a good time."

"I wouldn't be a bit surprised at anything those guys would do," Mrs. Cernan admitted with a grin.

She said her husband looked "marvelous." Mrs. Young said John looked "the same as always." Stafford looked "pretty good," his wife said.

She also produced her kindergarten drawing of a rocket, complete with the figure of a little girl watching it take off. Then she went horseback riding.

For a while, Tracey considered naming her cocker spaniel's three puppies "Red, White and Blue," then decided one should be called Snoopy. Snoopy is the code name of her dad's moonship.

Union Says Actors Must Be Warned of Nude or Sex Scenes

NEW YORK (AP) — Actors Equity says actors must be warned before they sign a contract if they will be required to perform nude or engage in simulated sex acts.

Angus Duncan, executive secretary of the 16,000-member union, said Monday he hoped "hard sex acts, actual sex acts," would be ruled out altogether. But he said Equity would not rule them out, leaving the choice to the individual actor.

Under Equity policy, a producer must indemnify a performer in case of arrest, furnish bail, fines and legal counsel, Duncan said.

BRITISH WITHDRAW

NEW YORK (AP) — The Royal Dorset Yacht Club of England has withdrawn its 1970 challenge for the America's Cup, reports the New York Yacht Club.

Experienced observers abroad have speculated that present economic conditions in England were factors in the decision.

Bluff Man Gets Sentence For Draft Law Violation

CAPE GIRARDEAU — A Poplar Bluff young man, James Lee Bower, was sentenced to five years in a federal penitentiary Monday in Federal District Court here for failure to comply with an order of his draft board to serve 24- months hospital duty in lieu of active military service.

He had pleaded guilty to the charge May 6 in the court here.

At that time, Judge Roy W. Harper delayed sentencing, pleading with the defendant to give more thought to accepting the employment in the University of Missouri Medal Center in preference to a prison sentence.

Today, Judge Harper gave the young man until June 5 to get his personal matters in order before reporting to the U.S. marshal. He also told the defendant should he reconsider the graveness of the sentence and decide to accept the hospital duty before that date, he should contact his court- appointed attorney, Wm. H. Frye of Cape Girardeau.

A condemnation suit involving land in Butler and Dunklin Counties also opened this forenoon following the criminal case.

The projected cost of the six-week trip was to be $2,400,000, of which the Japanese had agreed to pay half. The Met had obtained commitments for about half of its share of the expenses, but efforts over the past two years to raise the rest have been unsuccessful.

Dexter Scout Official Refuses to Return

DEXTER — Dick Becker, former Dexter professional Scouter, has refused a "request" of the Southeast Missouri Council of the Boy Scouts of America to return to the job he was dismissed from, after a stormy meeting, recently.

The SMC, after a request on the part of the Stoddard County Sioux District Committee to reconsider his dismissal (termed a "resignation" by SMC officials) agreed to return Becker to the payroll, only to have him reject the offer and, according to Connie Hay, SMC representative, will continue his college studies instead of returning to the scouting post.

Hay said a new professional Scounter would be appointed soon to fill the vacancy.

Why do Catholics believe so strongly?

Free "capsule" study will help you to understand

People of other faiths often wonder why Catholics insist on accepting beliefs which frequently work hardships upon them. Why, they ask, do Catholics want to maintain their own educational systems, practice strict birth control laws, deny themselves divorce and re-marriage freedom? Why, in fact, are they willing to accept so much self sacrifice as part of their creed?

Is it because Catholics accept their doctrines blindly and without question? Certainly not! The Catholic religion, founded on faith, is totally logical and totally reasonable. It has held a universal appeal to billions of people for centuries on end for that very reason.

In the interest of inter-faith harmony, Catholics want to be understood by members of other denominations. That's why the Knights of Columbus offer this course of Catholic instruction by mail. There's no cost or obligation of any kind and no one will call on you. Mail coupon today.

Check our price stickers against what competition's stuck with.

You'll find all 15 big Chevrolets we build—passenger cars and wagons—are lower priced than any comparable competitive models.

Our price stickers make good reading. But they only tell part of the story of how you come out ahead with a Chevrolet.

They don't tell you, for example, that the biggest, most powerful standard V8 in Chevrolet's field is under Chevrolet's hood.

Or that our standard six is more engine, too.

Or that you get Astro Ventilation in every model. Plus such peace-of-mind advantages as a side-guard beam built into every door.

Or that we build the only walk-in wagons in our field, complete with a convenient step in the rear bumper.

All of which really makes our price stickers that much better reading.

Then check out what they're attached to.

Get the message? That's what our Chevrolet Pacesetter Values are all about. Putting you first, keeps us first.

Mothers Should Talk to Children, Ask Questions that Stimulate Them

By BARBARA LACY

Don't throw away your Sears catalog and do keep talking, parents, if you want to help your pre-school child.

This advice comes from Dr. Merle B. Karnes formerly of Chaffee, and now professor of special education at the University of Illinois. She has been involved as a consultant to an experimental program at the Sikeston Regional Diagnostic Clinic, and was in town 2 days last week.

She was talking especially to those who work with low-income, handicapped, or under-achieving children, but her advice and ideas are good for parents of all children.

She feels that the average child will get along. That's why she has always been interested in the child who had trouble learning or who learned quite fast.

Her starting point is language.

"One reason we find children so deficient in language," she says, "is that they are always told to keep quiet. Their mother teaches them that by being quiet they are a good boy or girl.

"Or, the children are sent to watch television. You may say, 'why, if they watch television, look what they are exposed too.' But they can sit in front of the television an hour, and not learn a thing, if they haven't learned to process information. I guess they are just fascinated by the motion.

"Yet, I can't always blame the mothers who keep the children quiet or send them in to watch television. This is the only way a mother with many children keeps her sanity.

We say one of the most important factors in a child's development is the interaction between him and a parent, but we don't necessarily mean a blood-parent. It can be anyone who takes an interest in the child."

One of the most effective workers is an older sibling. In Illinois, "We brought brothers and sisters in, trained them, then sent them home to work with their younger brother and sisters for several hours each week. We paid them while we trained them and for every hour they worked at home. In six weeks the younger children's I.Q.'s had gone up 10 points. That is an exceptionally good gain.

"Also, the older children were motivated to do better work in school. I understand that this technique is used in several foreign countries." Dr. Karnes added, "and I thought that I though it up."

The friendly blonde lady, who looked not at all like a doctor with an impressive list of published studies behind her laughed, "that just proves again that nothing is ever really new in this world.

The program she was talking about is part of a preventive program for pre-school children; to prevent cultural retardation which is just as damaging and as permanent as physical retardation or brain damage.

The program at the Sikeston clinic is similar; it is to provide seemingly retarded pre-school children with a variety of experiences and academic training.

"We don't talk about middle class children because they are usually stimulated at home. The mother talks to them all day long. 'Now it is time to fry the hamburgers. I must get out the skillet. Now we can set the table.'

"When middle class children go to nursery school the parent says 'teach my child how to get along with others.' And that is really all he needs to know. He has learned everything else at home.

Dr. Karnes was showing slides and exhibiting learning materials she had made as she talked.

The games were made by pasting pictures from catalogs, gift-wraping paper, or other sources of 8 by 10 inch pieces of poster card in a bingo like order. Matching pictures are pasted on cards small enough to just cover their mate on the bigger card.

Some sets were of animals, flowers, birds. Others were hand drawn and colored shapes; triangles, circles and squares.

"Let's think of all the ways we can use these," she said as they were examined. "Don't go to all the trouble of making something, unless you think of many ways to use it.

"This type of game could be used to teach color, shape, number, sets, sequence -- all visual learning experiences."

But she wasn't finished "Let's not just make visua associations. Always have the children talk about what they are doing. 'This is a triangle.' "

"We always reward children for making a verbal response," she added.

She feels that each child should have his own game.

"We stress total involvement. If you have one care on the board and ask one child at a time to come up to the board and match a picture, you have one child at a time learning. If each child has his own card you have every child at work. With each child responding at the same time you have total involvement; total learning.

"We found recently that we were not encouraging enough creative thinking and problem solving. We so often ask questions that call for simple answers.

"Now we make it a point to ask question that have a variety of answers: 'What would you do if you spilled your milk? 'What you would do if it was cold outside and you didn't have a coat?'

"At first the children just gave on answer. In a few weeks they had loosened up a bit and were really able to think.

The two-day session at the clinic drew to a close and Dr. Karnes gathered up her material - the games separated into a multitude of brown paper envelopes. "Never throw anything away," she said refering to the materials her games are made from.

There wasn't time enough to continue. But Dr. Karnes will be back in July and August with more ideas for the teachers at the diagnostic clinic.

The Prayer
from

There are varieties of gifts, but the same Spirit; and there are varieties of service, but the same Lord . . To each is given the manifestation of the Spirit for the common good. (I Corinthians 12:4-5, 7, RSV)

PRAYER: Father, help us to dedicate our lives to You that whatever ability we have becomes a blessing to others and a glory to You. In the name of Jesus we pray. Amen.

Tensions High at Lincoln U.

Students occupied the Student Union May 9 in a peaceful sit-in and stayed there four days until urged by Rep. J. B. Banks (D-St. Louis), Atty. Gen. John Danforth and the presence of state highway patrolmen to leave.

Why did they do it?

The students, predominantly Negroes and led by a 30-member steering committee, were trying to get a list of about 50 grievances -- in the form of demands -- before the administration for negotiation.

After the students evacuated the Union, a committee of administration, faculty and students began deliberation and negotiation on the students' demands.

Prominent among their demands were an end to mandatory ROTC on the Lincoln campus, athletic contracts for scholarship athletes and improvements in housing conditions.

Enrollment figures at Lincoln have tripled since 1954 -- from about 700 to approximately 2,200. The school -- founded in 1866 as an institution of higher learning for Negroes -- was integrated in 1954.

In the past 15 years, during the tripling of enrollment, physical facilities at Lincoln have just doubled, according to James Saunders, public relations director at the university. New buildings include a fine arts center, an auditorium, a gymnasium, a high school for teacher training, the Student Union, a new ROTC building, and a general maintenance building -- but only two dormitories, housing a total of 250 students.

Saunders said, "The space we have now is adequate for the number of students we're now servicing," but added that a new library and more dormitories could be well used.

Students, however, are a little more outspoken on the facilities. The complain of unsanitary and rundown conditions in two of the university's seven dorms -- the athletes' dorm and one freshman dorm. Saunders admits they are in pretty bad shape, but he contends this is the result of a normal year's use and they will be back in good condition by next fall.

Lincoln's seven dorms house 900 students, Saunders said. The rest of the 2,200 - member student body lives in apartments or their parents' homes. And, Saunders said there have been many complaints from students seeking housing in Jefferson City about discrimination. He added that Lincoln today is about 50 per cent Negro.

Complaints of discrimination are turned over to the State Human Rights Commission for investigation and mediation, but he said none has gone to court.

On legislative appropriations for Lincoln, Saunders said, "I think they've been fair to us." He added that before 1954 a rather "loose view" was taken toward the university by the Legislature, but since integration "the Governor and the Legislature have treated the university very fairly."

But still the question -- why a demonstration?

Saunders said, as far as he knew, Dean of Students Ben Pugh had never received a list of grievances of the kind embodied in the demands presented during the sit-in.

The 40-demand list was not presented to the administration until after occupation of the Union. The students subsequently were unable to get through to Lincoln President Earl Dawson - and the administration, despite some strong support for the students from faculty members, refused to discuss grievances until the Union was vacated.

Johnny Anderson, a member of the student steering committee, has another story. He said he submitted a similar list to Dean Pugh last summer.

Paugh admitted Anderson had offered such a list and said he had asked Anderson to redraft the rough, sketchy proposals for administrative consideration.

What happened to the list? Anderson said a committee of administrators, faculty members and students was to have been organized by the administration last September to consider student grievances. He said he was waiting for the committee to crystallize before redrafting his proposals.

Pugh has been sympathetic with student grievances, and it was at his request that state patrolmen finally left the campus May 14. He had said he will resign if forced to take disciplinary action against students involved in the demonstration.

But what ever happened to that committee?

HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT 'SAFETY-IZES' MO. ROADS

The Missouri Highway Department is in the process of trying to add more control for the out-of-control vehicle. Provisiions include a safety zone, break-away signs, elimination of concrete drainage boxes in the median and putting the ends of guard railings into the ground.

Lyle V. McLaughlin, assistant to the chief engineer, said new interstates will have those provisions and existing interstate is being changed to meet standards set down by the department.

Previously, McLaughlin said, the ends of guard rails were straight and would allow an out-of-control vehicle to hit the end, perhaps driving the rail through the car.

Several years ago, on Interstate 55, two persons were killed when more than 60 feet of guard rail went through the car before the car stopped. "At 27 inches off the ground, the guard rail was just at the place where it could puncture a car," McLaughlin said.

The department is cutting the tops off of drainage boxes almost even with the ground and replacing them with grates, to prevent a vehicle from striking the box.

"Although the grates will not be as effective when it come to drainage,they should save lives," he said.

Sign posts are being fitted with a slip plate. When a car hits the post it will break away instead of remaining stationary. Many signs have been moved back 30 feet off the road McLaughlin said, creating a wider safety zone on the side of the road.

McLaughlin said research has shown that 75 per cent of out-of-control cars can be brought back into control within a width of 30 feet after the leave the road. All signs, lights and other hazards to the car are being moved back 30 feet. Missouri was the first to develop and implement this safety zone, McLaughlin said. The clear area also calls for a slight slope rather than previous high, steep roadbeds, eliminating the need for many guard rails now in existence.

SENATE STOPS WORK; WANTS TO FINISH MONEY BILLS

With appropriations and tax bills due to come up on the floor, this week should be an interesting on in the Senate and may see Republicans calling the action.

The upper chamber adjourned a day early, on Wednesday, last week to enable the Appropriations Committee to meet uninterrupted through the weekend, if necessary, to complete work on the House-passed money bills.

This apparently clears the way for the measures to be the first order of business this week.

It was the original intention of the Senate leadership to consider tax - increase bills first, but Republicans balked at this.

In a letter the Majority Leader A. Basey Vanlandingham (D-Columbia), Republican caucus chairman Sen. Richard Webster of CArthage said the GOP senators oppose considering tax increases before it is known how much money the state will need.

Although they are only 11 in number, the Republicans may be the deciding factor in the fate of the tax measures in the 34-member Senate. The "Young Turks", numbering about 15, will oppose an increase in the individual income tax which is supported by Gov. Warren E.

Although they are only 11 in number, the Republicans may be the deciding factor in the fate of the tax measures in the 34-member Senate. The "Young Turks", numbering about 15, will oppose an increase in the individual income tax which is supported by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes and seven "Old Guard" senators. Since neither Democratic faction has enough votes to pass its program, Republicans will be the decisive influence if they vote together, which is expected.

It remains to be seen which side they will take.

Court Overturns School Board's Decision on Hair

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

While long hair may be a woman's pride, it was the horror of a school board when its young men began to take equal pride in their long hair.

In fact, when the situation reached the point where you couldn't tell the hims from the hers without a formal introduction, the Board passed a regulation outlawing long hair for male students. Immediately, several students attacked the legality of the regulation in court.

"Look their best?"queried the members of the school board. "The fact is, they look like hairy baboons. And, since their long hair is a distraction to both themselves and everyone else in the school, and has an adverse effect upon their performances as students, the regulation is absolutely legal and necessary!"

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you uphold the validity of the regulation and depart the students from their long hair?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! He held that a person has a constitutional right to present himself or herself physically to the world in the manner of his or her choice so long as it's not unhealthy, obscene, dangerous to others, etc. In this case, concluded the court, there is no evidence that long hair constitutes such a menace or that it's a distraction to students or effects their performance as such.

WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT YOUR PRESCRIPTION.

What it is...and what it isn't

Your prescription is an order for a specific medication, for a specific individual, for a specific time. It is originated by your doctor and filled by your Registered Pharmacist. Today's prescription consists of eight specific and essential parts:

1. Date — included to verify the medicine is applicable to a current illness.
2. Name and address — so that none but the patient may use the prescription.
3. Superscription — "Rx"... the symbol generally believed derived from the Latin "recipe" meaning "take thou"
4. Inscription — the name and quantity of each ingredient prescribed.
5. Subscription — directions to the pharmacist explaining dosage, form and quantity of the pharmaceutical.
6. Signatura — directions to the patient on quantity, timing and method of taking the prescription.
7. Refill information — for use by the pharmacist to facilitate service to the patient.
8. Signature — of the prescribing physician to verify the order.

Your prescription obviously is more than phrases written on a piece of paper. It represents a lifegiving force which enables us all to live longer, healthier, happier lives.

GAUGE OF GREATNESS

Our new book, "Eisenhower: A Gauge of Greatness," is unique among all those that have been published thus far about the war time general and peace time President.

Relman Morin, two-time Pultizer prize winner, who knew Dwight D. Eisenhower for a quarter of a century, spent months writing this magnificent life, the only complete one ever written.

Much of the information Morin could supply from his own experience—he first met General Eisenhower in North Africa, and later helped cover his two presidential campaigns. Moreover he had interviewed the general dozens of times, and had talked to him by the hour to gather information specifically for this book. But above all, he had been given access to Eisenhower's files of personal correspondence. The result is a detailed, colorful, 140,000-word account providing deep insights and much new intelligence on a figure of world importance. It measures Eisenhower the soldier, the politician and the statesman by the gauge of greatness he himself set up.

The illustrations, some previously unpublished, were taken from the vast files of The Associated Press, and also from the National Archives, from Signal Corps files, and from the Eisenhower Museum at Abilene.

The reaction of a newspaperman who read the book in proof form may be typical of that of many readers—"There is so much in it that I never knew before."

It's a big volume, 8½ by 11 inches, bound handsomely in dark green linen and stamped in gold. There are over 85 illustrations in black and white and full color the pages total 264.

Classic Jazz Musician Dies

NEW YORK (AP) - Coleman Hawkins, whose pioneering techniques on the tenor saxophone were a foundation of modern jazz, died Monday in Wickersham Hospital. He was 64.

A native of St. Joseph, Mo., Hawkins was the first full tone and loud volume on the instrument. He developed this technique in the mid-1920s with Fletcher Henderson's Orchestra at the Roseland Ballroom.

Hawkins joined Mamie Smith's Jazz Band when he was 18. From the late 1930s on, he led his own bands. Only a month ago, he appeared at New York's Fillmore East with a quintet.

In 1939 Hawkins recorded "Body and Soul," regarded as one of the jazz classics. But he was admired as well for his ability to adapt to new styles, and was in the forefront of the "bebop" era in the 1940s, with the record "Woody 'n' You."

Hawkins had been ill for some time. A hospital spokesman said he died of bronchial pneumonia.

Scharz Asked to Testify About Insurance Rates

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The superintendent of the State Insurance Division was asked Monday night to appear before a special House committee investigating insurance rates in Missouri.

Robert D. Scharz was asked through James P. Dalton, chief counsel for the division, to appear to answer questions of the committee at a meeting scheduled for Wednesday night.

The committee, headed by Rep. Thomas D. Graham, D Jefferson City, was critical Monday night of failure of the division to take action against firms suspected of having high premium rates.

Dalton told the committee he thought the state's laws applying to action on excessive rates was too broad. He said he thought it would be too hard for the division to prove a firm's rates were excessive.

Graham said there was evidence of discriminatory insurance rates in Missouri but it would be futile for the committee to recommend any changes in the law if the insurance division doesn't even want to try and take action against those firms.

Dalton also said he thought insurance rates on motor vehicles were excessive but "I can't say positively."

Nixon Plan Designed to Make Draft Predictable

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's plan to reform the draft is intended, in part, to make the Selective Service system more predictable and equitable. But it won't make it less complicated.

Q—What's Nixon trying to accomplish?

A—He wants to reduce uncertainty and permit draft-age men to plan their futures sooner and more confidently.

Q—Why can't they plan that way now?

A—They are subject to the draft at any time during a 7-period year between the ages of 19 and 26. If they ever have a deferment, their liability is extended to age 35.

Q—How would Nixon's plan change that?

A—It would assign each man a specific year, at age 19 to 20, when he is most likely to be drafted and tell him in advance how far down the list he stands. His chances of induction would decrease each year after that.

Q—Can the President do that now?

A—Yes and no. He has legal authority now to reduce the draftable age group from the present 19-to-26 range, down to a one-year range at age 19 or 20. But the law requires that within the designated draft-age group, the oldest must be drafted first. Nixon is asking Congress for an amendment to the draft law so he can change that system.

Q—What's wrong with taking the oldest first?

A—In a one-year draft pool it would mean that those with the earliest birthdays would always be the first drafted, and those with late birthdays would be the last to go.

Q—How would Nixon solve that problem?

A—He would have draftees in each year selected by a type of lottery. First the days of the year would be scrambled into a random order and the draft-eligible men would be arranged in the same order by matching their birthdays with the scrambled calendar.

Those sharing the same birthday would be further distributed by scrambling the alphabet and matching it to the initials of their last names.

The result—scrambled first by birthdays, then by alphabet—would establish a clear sequence of who goes first, second, third, and so on.

Q—How would the chance of induction decrease in later years?

A—The President didn't say specifically. But a White House aide said it probably would mean that those past their "prime year" would not be drafted unless and until those still in a "prime year" had all been inducted.

Q—Could a man still obtain a deferment or an exemption?

A—Yes. But when it expired, would re-enter the draft pool at the same position he originally held in his age-group's sequence of call.

A—A "selective service year" would be established, depending when Congress authorizes the plan. Those men who are 19 years old when each "selective service year" begins would be the "prime" draft group.

Thus, their period of vulnerability would extend from some time after their 19th birthdays to exactly a year later. As their "prime year" ends, these men would enter a less-vulnerable category and a new group of 19 year-olds would become "prime" for a year.

Q—How would men already draft-eligible between 19 and 26 be divided up?

A—They wouldn't be. They would become—all of them—the first "prime" group in the first selective service year, and would move as a group into less-prime categories in succeeding years.

Q—Could college students still be deferred?

Q—How about graduate students?

A—Deferments now are permitted for graduate study only to medical and ministerial students. Nixon would leave it that way, but would guarantee that a graduate student who is drafted be permitted to finish out his current academic year.

Q—Is the Nixon reform plan complete?

A—No. Nixon directed the National Security Council and the Director of Selective Service to review present practices concerning draft deferments and exemptions and to report to him by next Dec. 1. He indicated some new guidelines for administration of the draft might be necessary.

Hearnes Labels Senate Cutback Backward Step

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes said today he thought the Senate was acting precipitately on sharply cut appropriation bills in an effort to keep the public from knowing what cuts have been made.

"I don't understand just what their object is," he told a news conference, "but this is just about the most gigantic backward step the state of Missouri could take."

The governor said the thought a particular mistake on the part of the Senate Appropriations Committee was to eliminate all capital improvements money. Skipping even one year in major repairs and construction, he said would be a big error.

The committee finished slashing about $17 million off the House-passed money bills Sunday and scheduled floor debate on them for today. Only general reports have been made to the public about what has been cut, Hearnes said.

Presbyterians Call on U.S. to Recognize Cuba

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — The United Presbyterian general assembly called upon the U.S. government today to recognize Fidel Castro's Cuban government and lift the trade embargo against Cuba.

A paper on Latin America, sharply critical of U.S. policies concerning Latin America, called for a complete rethinking of Washington's actions and programs in that part of the world.

The statement on Latin America was approved by a standing vote of more than half the voting commissioners at the annual meeting.

In the early morning hours, the assembly authorized the planning on a $50 - million fund-raising campaign for the poor to start at least one year from now.

Douglas Gambling Ties Draw Scrutiny

WASHINGTON (AP) — The foundation headed by Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas has cashed in a $2 million jackpot in selling its stock in a firm which owns three Las Vegas casinos.

A foundation official said Monday the holdings were sold in early March—two years after Douglas had described the stock as "an irrevocable gift."

Douglas has been paid approximately $85,000 over the last seven years as the Foundation's only salaried officer, tax records show.

Congressmen have called for an investigation of Douglas and his foundation's stock in Parvin-Dohrmann Co., which owns the Stardust, Fremont and Aladdin hotels and casinos.

The foundation's secretary and treasurer, Harvey Silbert, Disclosed in a telephone interview Monday that 21,791 shares in Parvin-Dohrmann were sold during the first week of March at $91.75 each. This would result in a purchase price of just under $2 million.

The $2 million price was five times the value listed for the foundation's Parvin-Dohrmann stock when Justice Douglas' role first became known to the public in 1966.

At that time, Douglas wrote Chief Justice Earl Warren:

"There has been criticism of the (stock) portfolio of the foundation. Except for minor items, the selection of the portfolio was made solely by Mr. (Albert) Parvin and was transferred by him to the foundation as an irrevocable gift."

Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., entered the letter to Warren in the Congressional Record this month in charging that Fortas had not returned the Wolfson check in 1966 "until after Justice Douglas had been caught with his hands in the same cookie jar."

The foundation's latest public tax records covering 1967 reported Parvin-Dohrmann holdings totaling 31,291 shares. When the other 9,500 shares were sold is unknown. But Silbert said the 21,791 sold in early March were the last ones held by the foundation.

Tax records show the foundation sold its stock two years ago in Del E. Webb Corp., which operates other casinos at Las Vegas and Lake Tahoe, Nev.

Douglas has said Parvin, a Los Angeles business executive, organized the foundation in 1960 after reading the jurist's lectures on the growing menace of communism. The foundation provides fellowships for foreign students at Princeton and UCLA.

"We're training the future prime ministers of underdeveloped countries in our democratic institutions. It is a tremendous project and I commend it to you," Douglas said last Saturday.

Parvin sold his stock in the Parvin-Dohrmann Co. last October when the firm was taken over by Chicago executive Delbert W. Coleman.

Baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn has promised an investigation of holdings in the company by owners of the Atlanta Braves and Oakland Athletics.

Joint Committee Studies Ways to Elect President

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The best and safest way to elect a president and vice president was the topic of a joint House - Senate committee meeting Monday night.

U. S. Rep. William L. Hungate, D-Troy, took part in the hearing, one he called a pulse-taking mission to see how Missouri's Legislature would react to an electoral reform.

Hungate is a member of the House Judicial Committee which is considering several proposed changes in the method of electing the United States' two top office holders.

Because, he said, any change in he federal constitution would require ratification by three - fourths of the states, he and other members of the committee are sounding out individual state legislatures to see how they would react to proposed changes.

Most of the testimony Monday night centered on a proposed change that would elect the president and his running mate by direct popular vote. It would, however, require the winning candidate to get at least 40 per cent of the vote. Failing that, the two top contenders would participate in a runoff election.

Other methods being considered by the U.S. House of Representatives would:

Require presidential electors to cast their ballots for the candidate winning most of the state's votes. This would preclude the faithless electors who, as happened last year, can now disregard the votes cast in his state and cast his electoral vote for the candidate of his own choice.

A proportional system - favored by President Richard M. Nixon during his campaign - which would divide a state's electors according to the vote of the state.

That method was approved by the U.S. House committee recently and Hungate said it should come up for debate in the near future.

Rep. Richard J. DeCoster, D-Canton, objected to the runoff portion of that measure because, he said, it would be just another big expense. Hungate agreed and said it could be another case where the candidate with the most money - to conduct his campaign, would stand the best chance of winning.

Sen. Ronald L. Somerville, R-Chillicothe, said he was opposed to any change in the method of electing the chief executive.

He said he thought the proposed popular vote method would allow a candidate to capture the election by winning only ten of the most populous states, the same thing that can happen now by capturing the states with the most electoral votes.

One witness said the present method required the candidates to listen to the concensus of the populous in each state and, he said, that was more important than the fact one man might be able to win by a few votes.

Finger Tip Service is Available As Good Car Care Comes In Cans

Last year the U.S. Motor Vehicle Bureau registered over 80 million passenger cars, and that number is increasing every year with a total of 114½ million predicted for 1985.

Cars need care, and the Aerosol Division, Chemical Specialties Manufacturers Association, lists dozens of products now packaged in spray form to do the various jobs needed to keep your auto in the best possible running order.

The place to start your car care is under the hood, with an aerosol engine cleaner. A de-rusting spray will loosen nuts and bolts and remove any rust, and a carburetor and choke cleaner will spray away the carbon buildup.

You can stop here if you wish, or go on with some of the protective items that help keep the motor and other working parts in condition.

A high-heat engine enamel, specially made for cars, will make the oldest engine look factory-fresh, and also provide protection against rust and weathering.

You can also buy aerosol coating for your battery terminal, fan belt and ignition system which will cut the wear and tear on these parts, saving you some costly repairs and a lot of annoyance.

Now you can turn your attention to protecting and prettifying the outside of the car. Your de-ruster is handy here too, for loosening nuts on the wheels. Has the paint been marred or scraped? You can buy touch-up paint to match almost any U.S.-made car, a lot cheaper than a body-shop paint job.

A combination cleaner/wax will save you the time and trouble of scrubbing the car, and for a really high sheen, use your cleaner/wax first and spray over it with plain auto wax. Then spray a chrome protector on your fenders and other metalwork.

An aerosol windshield washer is next — antifreeze additives make this another double-duty product — and it's time for the finishing touches. There are aerosol cleaners for almost every type of upholstery, and a tire cleaner to brighten up those whitewalls.

Teflon spray-glide can be helpful in dozens of places — window frames, hood, trunk and door latches, accelerator, brake and clutch pedals and many others. Finally, tuck a car deodorizer spray into your glove compartment and you're ready to roll.

Or are you? Did you remember all the aerosol safety products that add the extra plus to your own safe driving? A fire extinguisher is important, and an aerosol tire inflator so easy a woman can use it might be a "lifesaver" for night driving.

Winter brings its own problems — and the aerosol industry has solutions to many of them. Do you have trouble starting your engine in cold weather? Spray some starting fluid into the carburetor and listen to it turn over. Defogging and de-icing agents are a must, and the latest aerosol item on the automotive shelves is a traction spray for the tires, to drive yourself out of that snowbank.

Aerosols can handle almost all your car care, except perhaps to drive to the service station and fill up the tank. The CSMA gives these tips for proper use: (1) read the label; (2) store away from heat; and (3) keep out of the reach of children.

First Test Track Built in 1915

Proving grounds were introduced by the industry in 1924. But what probably was the first test track designed specifically to test and evaluate production vehicles was built by a Detroit auto maker back in 1915. A half-mile planked track circled a steel-fabricated "hill" more than 40 feet high, which cars had to climb prior to leaving the factory.

Cars were also required to plow through a sand pit and travel around the track at all speeds before being approved for shipment. Before the track was built, newly-assembled vehicles were tested on nearby city streets.

Drugs and Driving Don't Mix, Association Warns

So important is respect for drugs in insuring highway safety that N.A.R.D. is providing fact sheets for driver education teachers in and out of high school, according to executive secretary Willard B. Simmons, who represents 40,000 independent drugstore owners.

Druggists are teaching the public the power of drugs. Drugs save lives, Simmons points out. He adds facts of interest to all drivers.

"When doctors prescribe some valuable medications they insist that no driving be done for a specified number of hours," he says. "Heed their advice and the advice of the druggist who reminds you of that fact."

In addition to urging respect for the life-saving drugs of daily life, members of N.A.R.D. are lending their professional efforts to schools to forward the work of drug education. The dangers of drug abuse are being brought to students' attention at the request of the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs of the Department of Justice.

* * *

BARBITURATES, for example — known as "goofballs" and by other terms — produce slurred speech, impaired motor responses, sensory distortion and more. A person withdrawing from barbiturate abuse may have spasms and convulsions, particularly dangerous behind a car wheel. Barbiturate overuse plus alcohol can cause sudden death.

* * *

AMPHETAMINES — stimulants which have respected medical uses but are known as "pep pills" or "co-pilots" to drug abusers — can cause severe hallucinations on the road. Truck drivers, vacationers, long distance drivers may take too many amphetamines to stay awake. Too frequently the driver will then hear "voices," see "ghost vehicles" and have other aberrations that can cause a crash.

* * *

MARIJUANA, thought by some teens to be harmless, is a major villain when it comes to highway safety. Unlike an ordinary cigarette, "grass" causes sensory distortions. A car 10 feet away may seem 100 feet away. Sideswipe accidents are common and more serious collisions can occur.

* * *

LSD PRESENTS DOUBLE DANGER. Not only does taking it cause an immediate disoriented "high" and bizarre hallucinations, but the same effects can occur with no warning six months or a year later. The "afterflash" effect can jeopardize not only the driver but his passengers as well as other drivers and pedestrians nearby.

* * *

If a driver exhibits drunken behavior but there is no aroma of alcohol, drug abuse may be suspected.

* * *

These and other facts are being called to the attention of students and faculties at all schools as well as to concerned parent groups.

What can the safe driver do to protect against these hazards?

* * *

STUDENTS ARE BEING URGED to seek medical facts and study recent clinical research so that objective data can be given to all. Poster contests and slogan contests in high schools and other student efforts are being encouraged, to turn the cold light of reason on drug abuse. And parents, teachers and all adults are being urged to call for drug education in the schools.

* * *

EVERY PARENT CAN AID by checking his child's whereabouts, knowing the identity of group drivers, and making strict rules about car use, experts advise.

Helpful Tips on . . .

How to Get More Miles Per Gallon

Two drivers of the same automobile may get different gas mileage due to the differences in driving habits. Other factors include driving conditions and mechanical condition of the automobile.

It costs almost 50% more to drive 80 mph than it does to drive 50 mph. Cost of driving 60 mph is 25% higher than cost of driving 30 mph.

- Wet driving conditions: Slowing down under wet or snowy conditions conserves fuel. Wet pavement can reduce mileage by 1 mile per gallon.
- When parked, turn off engine. One minute of idling uses more fuel than restarting uses.
- Starting and stopping. Avoid "jack rabbit" starts, sudden stopping and racing on the green light.
- Windy conditions. Drive slower if you're interested in better fuel economy.

* * *

Here are some suggestions on care and mechanical condition of your car for better fuel economy:

- Use good grade of gasoline recommended by the manufacturer of your automobile.
- Be sure tires are inflated properly.

SHORT TAKES ON CAR CARE

In cleaning your windshield, don't forget the inside. Tobacco smoke can put a film of residue on the glass and distort vision. So, if you smoke, periodically clean the windshield with a window washing solvent.

What's a safe distance to follow another car? Experts recommend one car length for every 10 miles per hour of speed on dry roads. When roads are slippery, the distance between should be doubled.

Safety experts advise never driving more than three hours without stopping to rest on a long trip. Getting out of the car to stretch or stopping for coffee is recommended to avoid excessive driving strain.

Reckless Driving Can Really Get You Down . . . About Six Feet, Say

The average spark plug will fire 15,000,000 times in 10,000 miles of driving. The effects of the electrical charge wear down the plug's firing end. Plug manufacturers recommend servicing plugs at 5,000 miles and replacing them at 10,000 miles.

Car Care Cuts Air Pollution

Good car care takes on added importance these days — to you, your pocketbook, and the air you breathe. This is especially so if you own a car built during the past seven years, according to the American Petroleum Institute.

If your car is a 1963 or later model, it is equipped with a device to control pollutants that would otherwise come from the engine crankcase. If you own a 1968 or 1969 model, it also has a system for reducing tailpipe emissions.

These devices and systems, however, will continue to work properly — and, what's more, allow the engine to perform satisfactorily — only if you have your car checked regularly. A periodic tune-up will save you money in fuel and repair costs, give you a smoother running car, and help cut down on air pollution.

1963: Crankcase Controls

The first device to control automotive pollution was installed nationally in all 1963 cars. The device — called the "positive crankcase ventilation," or PCV valve — was designed to recirculate unburned hydrocarbons back to the engine where they have another chance to burn.

Formerly, these unburned gases (called blowby gases) escaped past the piston rings into the crankcase, where they were vented into the air. Installation of the PCV device cut total hydrocarbon emissions from the typical car by 24 per cent, compared with cars without the device.

The PCV valve will continue to do its job in controlling hydrocarbon emissions if it's periodically inspected and serviced as required under your car warranty. Otherwise, you may be in for trouble. Over a period of time, crankcase fumes tend to build up gums or varnishes. These could cause the valve to stick and not function.

Result: Poor Starting

If the valve gets stuck in the open position, the carburetor will feed the engine too lean a mixture of fuel and air. The result: poor starting and possible frequent stalling while you wait and idle at a stoplight.

In the more likely event that the valve sticks in the closed position, crankcase fumes will be trapped in the crankcase. These fumes will either escape through the oil filler breather cap (if the breather cap is clean), or form sludge in the crankcase. This can create corrosive acids, which ruin engine bearings.

The best way to prevent formation of these acids is to have the valve checked each time you have your oil changed or engine tuned.

Most car manufacturers recommend periodic replacement of the PCV valve. This can be done inexpensively and easily by your service station mechanic. This preventive maintenance can prove to be cheap insurance against an expensive bearing replacement job.

1968: Exhaust Controls

The second significant step in automotive pollution control occurred, nationally, with the installation of exhaust control systems, beginning with 1968 cars. These systems are designed to control both hydrocarbon and carbon monoxide emissions.

Beware! Shower Can Make Road Slippery

Summer showers, especially after a long dry spell, can make road surfaces as slippery as winter ice, a special safety bulletin issued by the Rubber Manufacturers Association warns.

The danger of skidding is greatest, says the trade group, during the first 15 to 30 minutes after it starts to rain; up to an hour or more in a light drizzle.

This is due to the little-known fact that rain tends to float up onto the road surface a greasy film of oil, gasoline and rubber residue which becomes a treacherous ice-like lubricant between the tires and the road until enough rain falls to wash it away.

The possibility of an accident on a wet road, says the Association, is between 5 and 10 times as great as on a dry road, in terms of the likelihood of a skid and loss of control of a car. In terms of stopping distance, it may take up to four times as far to stop on a wet road as a dry road.

Seek New Vistas to Restore the Joys of Driving

Nothing restores the joys of motoring more than getting away from everyday driving chores and traveling through unspoiled countryside. Also adding to the spirit of freedom is having a car that is in top shape.

Overheating Can Be Forestalled By These Checks

While most cars made today have cooling systems that are "sealed" in the factory, a wise motorist still takes precautions against engine overheating. Here are some basic precautions to take to make sure your car keeps its cool.

Test the anti-freeze to make sure it hasn't lost its rust inhibiting elements. If it has, drain and flush the cooling system before installing new anti-freeze.

Test the condition and tension of all drive belts as well as radiator hoses. Check the radiator and hoses for leaks. Also check pump gaskets and tightness of the pulley hub on the water pump.

Check to see that there is no foreign matter on the cooling fins and that the overflow tube is not obstructed.

Sports Car Roar From Sedan May Signal Trouble

Has your family sedan started to develop a sports car "rap"? Instead of taking it to Watkins Glen or Lemans, better check your exhaust system. That deep-throated roar under the chassis undoubtedly means your exhaust system is defective.

Not only might it earn you a traffic ticket for making too much noise but it could mean a death sentence for you and your family. A leaky exhaust is a potential source of lethal carbon monoxide.

When you hear a noisy exhaust, head straight for your favorite service outlet. Better yet, have a mechanic check your exhaust system next time your car is on the hoist.

FURRY CAR

GLASGOW, Scotland (AP) — A "furry" motor car belonging to a Scottish businessman shows this notice in the window when it is parked: "You can touch it. It won't bite."

The effect is achieved by painting the car with epoxy resin, then depositing man-made fibers on it by a high voltage electricity technique.

The car owner, R.B. Whitehead, runs a Glasgow firm that normally provides this kind of finish for interior walls of hotels and bars.
